BIAS BAY AREA TO BE PATROLLED

ARMED LAUNCHES ACQUIRED

MANNED BY TROOPS WITH MACHINE-GUNS

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, To-day.
For the patrol of Bias Bay and the coast of Kwangtung, three steam launches have been chartered by the Pacific Commission Headquarters at Swatow. Troops armed with machine-guns and one-pounders are carried on board, while navigation officers are provided by the Canton Naval Flotilla.

The patrolling area is from Bias Bay to Wai Loy, a distance of about 100 miles. The charter of steam launches is necessary, as the gunboat Kwang Kum has returned here from Bias Bay. This flotilla is under the direct command of the Pacific Commission Headquarters, of which General Li Yang-ching is the General Officer Commanding.

With the disbandment of the coastguards, it is feared that pirates in the Bias Bay area will soon be active again.

In spite of the patrol around Bias Bay, foreign coasting vessels have not relaxed any precautions against pirates boarding their vessels as passengers and seizing the ships.

Just Over Half Last Year's Figure

Ninety-one people were killed this year in Independence Day accidents, compared with 177 last year. Only two deaths resulted from fireworks explosions, but hundreds were injured thereby, including 14 in Washington, where the sale of fireworks was prohibited. — Reuter.

Demonstration In France On National Holiday

Paris, to-day. — The nationalist war veterans' association, the Croix de Feu, announces that it has abandoned the plan to hold a demonstration at the Arc de Triomphe on Sunday next, but intends instead to relit the flame of remembrance at the grave of the Unknown Soldier on the national holiday, July 14. The decision is due to the fact that it is declared that the Government planned not to allow the association's as well as all other demonstrations on Sunday, but since it had expressly permitted demonstrations by the Left on July 14, it naturally could not

AMERICANS SHINE AT WIMBLEDON CRAWFORD AND QUIST IMPRESSIVE

BRITISH DAVIS CUP PAIR WIN BUT MUST IMPROVE

London, To-day.

Christian Boususs and Marcel Bernard, the French Davis Cup pair, proved no match for the Australian Davis Cup players Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist holders of the French title, in the quarter-finals of the All-England Men's Doubles Championship at Wimbledon yesterday, being defeated in straight sets.

Bernard gave a listless and indifferent display, but Boususs was a trier throughout. The Frenchmen, however, did not have the shots to cope with the intensive net play of the Australians, who forced the pace and always held the upper hand.

Donald Budge, one of America's coming champions, and Gene Mako, who may represent America in the Davis Cup doubles match against Germany, gave one of the most spectacular displays ever seen at the Wimbledon championships during the last decade when they beat Enrique Maier, Spain's first ranking player, and Sydney B. Wood, the 1931 singles champion, in a five-set battle.

All four players were brilliant individually, but Budge and Mako shone as a pair. They led 7-6 in the third set when Mako, who had hitherto been deadly at the net, began sending all his returns into the net and the Americans dropped that and the fourth set. Recovering perfectly in the final set, they won for the loss of three games.

In one of the other quarter-finals Davis Cup captain, and final Pat Hughes, Perry's former partner, and C. B. D. Tuckey, the Army champion, beat E. D. Andrews, the New Zealand Davis Cup captain, and G. Lyttelton Rogers, the Irish Davis Cup player, in straight sets.

Warsaw, To-day.

The first of three bills for the reform of the electoral system was passed by the Senate yesterday by 64 votes to 24, all the amendments proposed by the Opposition having been rejected.

The bill regulates the election to the Sejm, and it is assumed that the two other bills concerning the elections to the Senate and Presidential elections will also be approved without any changes, after which the present Parliament will be dissolved and a date will be fixed for general elections under the new law. — Trans-Ocean Service.

TRAGEDY MARS PACIFIC TRIP BY EMPRESS

Ship's Engineer Killed At Honolulu

FATAL BATHING MISHAP

Tragedy marred the voyage from Vancouver of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, it was learned on the arrival of the vessel in Hong Kong early this morning.

When the ship berthed at Honolulu on June 20, the Assistant Fourth Engineer, Joshua Hoyle, and some of his shipmates decided to take a swim. All went well until Hoyle attempted to indulge in the favourite pastime of swimmers and dive through the waves, which are noted for their size at Honolulu. He, unfortunately, misjudged the dive, and struck his head with terrific force against a submerged reef, breaking his neck. Death was instantaneous.

SUGGESTION HEDGED WITH CONDITIONS

DISQUIETING EFFECT ON EMPIRE TRIBESMEN

BRITAIN WILL NOT ACT WITHOUT CONSULTING DOMINIONS

London, To-day.

Reuter understands that the centre of gravity of the Abyssinian problem has at present shifted to Paris, where Britain is making soundings on the basis of the British collective obligations as a member of the League.

The British policy seems to be not to shirk obligations, but Britain cannot be expected to bear the whole burden of action alone if other countries decline to take their share.

There is no reason to believe that Britain will take the initiative for the imposition of economic sanctions. She is bending her energies to prevent an outbreak of hostilities, governed by the condition that she cannot be expected to undertake alone any risk likely to arise in the process. No action will be taken without consultation with the Dominions.

One question being carefully considered is the possible effect of hostilities in Abyssinia on other parts of Africa, where the natives are closely watching the progress of the dispute. — Reuter.

A later message from London states that the feeling widely aroused in the House of Commons on July 1 when Mr. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, announced the proposed offer of British territory to Italy to assist a settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, found a further outlet yesterday afternoon.

Stating a question Mr. J. P. Dickie (L. Nat., Consett) recalled the treaties of 1884 and 1886, under which, on the withdrawal of Egyptian protection from the Somali territory, the Mohammedan tribes and inhabitants voluntarily expressed the desire to place their territories under the jurisdiction of Queen Victoria, and the question asked if any negotiations had been held between the Governor and the inhabitants of these areas which it was proposed to transfer to another sovereignty.

Alleged Military Pact

London, To-day.
Several morning papers, giving prominence to the Abyssinian dispute, declare that France is not likely to agree to any application of sanctions against Italy because she recently signed a treaty with Italy, with a protocol attached allegedly giving Italy virtually a free hand in Abyssinia, and declaring that France has no interest in Abyssinia outside the railway zone.

The agreement is alleged to be practically tantamount to a military pact enabling the French and Italian General Staffs greatly to reduce the frontier garrisons, leaving the Franco-Italian frontier almost bare and freeing the Italian troops for Africa. — Reuter.

Berlin, To-day.

An official communique issued last evening states that the two-day visit of Colonel Beck, the Polish Foreign Minister, afforded an opportunity for detailed discussions between Chancellor Hitler, the Reich Government, and the Polish Minister.

The communique goes on to say that "in the course of the conversations, which were conducted in a frank manner, questions of special interest to Germany and Poland as well as problems of general European policy were dealt with. First Lord's Statement On Submarine Abolition

London, to-day. — The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, has issued a statement in regard to the report that the German Delegation during the recent Anglo-German naval conversations had expressed their readiness to subscribe to a clause the effect of which would be that Germany would support the British Government in any attempt they might make to bring about the abolition of submarines, and that this suggestion was not entertained by the British Government.

The First Lord says that such a clause was suggested that any such clause should be inserted in the communiqué. — (Continued on Page 14.)

HAT & TRAVELLING CASES MATCH

CHOOSE RAW HIDE

Hat and travelling cases match. A new shape for the former is octagonal, while blouse cases can be round or square. There are shoe cases for six, eight, or twelve pairs. Combined hat and shoe cases, with space for two or four pairs, are for cruising. They have rigid handles, and are made of stouter material than those designed just for hats, which should not be used for heavier articles. To be really fashionable raw hide cases must be the choice. Light in weight, exceedingly strong—they are practically indestructible and distinctive in appearance, they fulfil all the requirements of a good case. Chromium fittings add to the smart effect, and will always remain bright.

Three and five-ply wood cases in many instances are covered with unusual cloths, which make for easy recognition in a stack of luggage. Outstanding, but neat at the same time, is a pebble-grained cloth in blue and white. Very arresting, too, are those in deck-chair stripings.

DRESS INCOMPLETE WITHOUT WRAP

Capelets For Hot Days

Some form of wrap is needed to complete frocks, either for formal or informal wear. A dress alone, unless it be of very summery aspect or for home wear, seldom suffices nowadays.

For hot days the cape or smaller capelet is a boon, as it can be cool enough to suggest no more than a finish to the frock, or it can be a long graceful wrap, lined or unlined. For really cold days, that do occur even in summer, there are light capes in furs that serve equally for day or evening.

SUMMER EVENING FASHIONS

"PIRATE" AND "MAHARANE" STYLES

COVERINGS FOR CORSAGES

The charm is much in the "Pirate" gowns with full-length printed linen skirts and bodices of plain-coloured velvet, that may be covered by Eton jackets with puff sleeves on waist-length capes of printed fabric.

The "Maharane" gown is another intriguing summer evening style in brown, black and gold striped with silk gauze with a nude back, high front and scarf length draping to cover the head at will.

Coverings for corsages drape up from a side front panel superimposed down a skirt length. In one instance this panel is faced with light rust next pastel blue. The high corsage has a bow tie in front and shows a wide diamond shape of nude back towards one side above the waist.

NEW STYLE IN CAPES

Becoming Vogue For Young And Old

There is a new line about capes that is becoming to both young and old. Capes of bygone years had a full rounded appearance. Modern designers cleverly manage to conceal this, and also successfully to deal with stiffness of neckline that adds height and grace. In thin fabrics a kind of hood-drapery is sometimes added at the back. The longer cape has slits for the arm to come through in most cases, but this is only for the greater lengths.

BEACH GARMENTS

INTEREST CENTRES ON HEADDRESSES

FASHION INCLUDES FLOWERS AND JEWELLERY

A DECORATIVE SEASON

(By The Hon. Mrs. C. W. FORESTER)

It was only to be expected that with the return to feathers, flowers and beautiful jewels the headresses would appear once more.

Diadems of diamonds, coloured stones, feathers and flowers can all be seen at the formal functions. The new methods of treatment never recall the somewhat untidy and over-decorated heads of former days. The chic coiffure is short and well groomed, curled tightly to the head, in soft waves, and the floral or jewelled decoration is added. The coronal-plaits have given way to the diadem and wreath.

All sorts of small blossoms are used, often to match a corsage bouquet or spray of the same. This is a particularly happy mode for the dancing debutante, as, despite the girlish coiffure, the head retains its sleek "tidy" look. Ears are revealed again, but tiny curls form a soft background, and the shape of the head is shown with the hair taken upwards to add height and a certain dignity which was missing from the old shingle.

A great Paris artist gives us wonderful ideas made in strands of lacquered hair of any colour. This constitutes a turban head-dress which is much to the fore at the Paris cinemas and theatres.

The return to the evening cap and variety of head-dresses has many advantages, one being a saving of time. Theatres start early, and it is helpful to tidy up one's coiffure, and adjust one of these smart turbans, or a floral cap to balance the evening cape of chiffon or fur, as weather dictates.

WEDDING GOWNS

Satin The Favourite Material

Satin, as always, is a favourite, especially when a gown is to have long sleeves that cover the wrists and dip gracefully down over the hands. Net comes in for second place and is the perfect fabric for charming, bouffant frocks with puff sleeves. Not mits to match complete the picture. White pique is used, too. With this the maids wear dotted swiss in pastel tones.

With the satins—long-trained, form-fitting and, very, very lady-like—there are Victorian hair ornaments and necklaces of seed pearls. These are sure to appeal to the kind of girl who decides to carry a white prayer book instead of an armful of blooms over which the maids can struggle afterwards.

Attractive Colour Schemes

PLAIN COLOURS PREVAIL

Plain colours prevail in these new beach garments, and they are sun tested in navy, royal blue, dark red, emerald green, bright yellow, two tones of brown in dark and light chestnut shades.

White is there to contrast over a black jersey pareo with a high front showing white, marguerites distributed down either side. Contrasting notes are not always stressed with emerald green meeting over emerald, and royal or navy identical blues.

Diaphanous and pareos not only match or contrast for basking in the sands, but are made with changes for "al-fresco" dinners on hot summer nights. One of these changes completes a difference in the form of bathing suits of mat or dark brown brilliant cellophane sequins glistening beneath white or brown opaque silken coats. The two garments blend harmoniously with one covering the nudistic trend of the other.

That's how I relieve prickly heat

By adding three tablespoonfuls of Scrub's Ammonia to your bath water, you can be certain of instant relief from prickly heat. Scrub's conquers perspiration.

SPEECH DAY AT ST. STEPHEN'S

Lady Southern Presents Prizes

BISHOP HALL SPEAKS ON NEW GAOL AT STANLEY

An interesting ceremonial took place yesterday at the St. Stephen's College, Stanley, when Lady Southern, O.B.E., presented the prizes at the College's annual Speech Day in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering of masters, old pupils of the college, parents, friends and well-wishers. The chair was taken by the Rt. Rev. Ronald L. Hall, Bishop of Hong Kong, supported by His Excellency the Officer-Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, K.B.E., C.B.E.

After an opening prayer by the Rev. G. K. Carpenter, the Bishop gave a welcoming speech in which he mentioned the fact that the New Gaol would soon be occupied and that he hoped the prison officers would have their children educated at the college. He pointed out the fact that the gaol was to be called the New Gaol and not the Stanley Gaol, thus avoiding slight complications.

The Warden, the Rev. E. W. L. Martin, then issued the report, making special mention of the fact that all the 25 boys who had been trained under Mr. J. A. Gaunt, had passed in their Life-Saving Examination. This was followed by Mr. Andrew Ling giving the annual report of the Chinese Studies.

The prizes were then distributed. In his speech His Excellency quoted the King's Jubilee message to the children of the Empire, and expressed pleasure that the college had attracted so many students from far off Chinese towns and ports.

Among those who accepted the invitations to be present were: His Excellency Sir Thomas Southern and Lady Southern, Rt. Rev. Bishop and Mrs. R. O. Hall, Hon. Sir H. E. and Lady Pollock, Hon. Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Tso, Hqn. Mr. T. N. Chan, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Tinsman, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. Z. OIL DISCOVERED IN COAL MINE

No Commercial Value Attached

Wrexham

It is stated that oil has been discovered in a part of Llay Main Colliery, near Wrexham, the newest and biggest pit in the North Wales coalfield, employing 3,000 men.

Crude oil has been sent for analysis, but not much importance is officially attached to the discovery. The managing director, Mr. Sydney Gill, stated to-day:

"A slight feeder of oil has been tapped in the main coal, but whether it will continue we don't know. We regard it as unlikely that the oil has any commercial value."

BRIDGE NOTES

When Notrump Is Safest

By Ely Culbertson

Though it is a fundamental principle of the Culbertson system to approach with suit bids whenever possible, it does not follow that notrump is to be avoided as the final contract. The trump suit, usually an effective barrier against attack, may be just the opposite. If so, it may be wise to come out of the trump fortress and fight in the open.

Such a situation occurs when an adverse Double reveals that an unfavourable trump break is to be anticipated and the combined hands have another long suit, the running of which will fulfill the contract. In to-day's hand, played at Crockford's Club, New York, East's Double of the final Grand Slam bid sounded an alarm for the South player, who now realized that the club suit, rather than the diamonds, must be the backbone of the contract. This being so, South bid notrump as a safety measure, and, aided, it must be confessed, by a favourable break, fulfilled his contract.

1—With six honour-tricks, an obvious opening.

2—A dangerous, but gallant, overcall.

3—North has a strong hand opposite the strong opening.

4—Another suit is shown.

5—No need to hurry.

6—After partner's bid of clubs and diamond support, South decides on a Slam as the objective.

7—A little over-zealous as the diamond support is not adequate to assure no losers.

8—A very bad double. With East's holding the best chance to defeat the contract is a policy of constructive silence.

9—South correctly reads the situation and decides that there is better hope of running the clubs than the diamonds. Had he not made this bid, North should have done so.

10—Simply a face-saving gesture. Of course, East has no Double of any contract.

11—The odds make this a good bet. If the hand goes down one, South loses 200 additional points, while if he fulfills the contract he nets 450 points more.

Of course, the play was simple. West opened a spade. South won, led two rounds of clubs, and when both opponents followed suit, entered dummy with the diamond King, and discarded losing hearts and diamonds on the club. Later the marked finesse against East's diamond Queen was taken.

While notrump was safest after seven diamonds had been bid, South was lucky in every way. It is the Double by East revealing believed that the robbery took place after the train left Didcot and the bags were then dumped, and in the fortuitous drop of the clubs. Of course, North might have had the club Jack, but that was hardly to be counted on.

ADAMSON IS TOO STRONG

THE OUTLOOK FOR TELEVISION

B. B. C. Need New Impetus

AMERICAN EXPERIMENTS

London.

Somebody prominently identified with broadcasting and television remarked recently that in 10 years' time we should all be amazed to think we were content in 1935 with "sightless" radio. Let it be thought that this is merely another glimpse of the obvious; let it be said that such an expression of faith is rare among those in the groove of sound broadcasting.

The B.B.C., in fact, need a new outlook on television. It should be regarded as a means of escape from cramping restrictions, as adding another sense to radio; not as an uncomfortable revolution to be deferred as long as possible.

There are not many people at Broadcasting House who really believe in television yet. At the moment there is considerable stirring behind the "safety" curtain of secrecy which the Television Advisory Committee have seen fit to lower. It will not be surprising if they break their three months' silence soon.

American Plans

The Radio Corporation of America have just announced a plan for a big "field demonstration" of television, costing $200,000. They are to establish a modern transmitting station and to manufacture a limited number of receiving sets, which will be placed at strategic points for observation. An experimental service will be developed to determine the most acceptable form of programme.

It will take from 12 to 15 months to construct the transmitter and receivers on a laboratory basis, the R.C.A. have produced a 343-line picture repeated 60 times per second. They use the iconoscope, or electric eye, which gives the television transmitter the properties of a camera lens.

MAILBAG ROBBERY ON TRAIN

Nothing Of Value Stolen

BAGS AND PACKAGES DISCARDED

Bath. A mail train between London and the West of England was robbed on the G.W.R. line between Didcot and Bath during the night recently.

The following afternoon three bags of letters and small packages were found torn open among some bushes on a steep bank near Bath station. Whether they were on the mid-evening train or the 230 a.m. night train is not yet known. It is believed that the robbery took place after the train left Didcot and the bags were then dumped, and in the fortuitous drop of the clubs. Of course, North might have had the club Jack, but that was hardly to be counted on.

P.O. Statement. It is thought that nothing of great value was taken. A Post Office official said: "Apparently one of them from Reading to Bristol."

LEADING SKIPS POSITIONS IN RACE FOR 1935 BOWLS HONOURS

MOSS PLAYS BOWLS FOR 13 YEARS

Local Representative At Wanstead

ONE OF POLICE MAINSTAYS

G. C. Moss, the well-known senior division Police skip, has had a long and varied career as a bowler—extending over 13 years—during which time he has contributed materially to the success of the Police R.C. team. Taking up the game in the good old days when the late W. Gerrard and Peter Grant were familiar figures on the greens, he admits his indebtedness to these two bowlers for what success he has achieved.

At that time there was only one Police team, and it was not long before Moss gained his place in it, beginning as No. 1 and gradually progressing until he was able to take up reins as a skip, where he has now played for many years.

G. C. MOSS

Although regularly entering for the Colony Singles Championship, Mr. Moss smilingly admits that he has been eliminated with the same regularity. His ventures in other competitions, however, have met with greater success for last year a rink skipped by him, comprising W. Carey, T. Forrest and W. Mair, reached the concluding stages of the Gutierrez Shield before being forced to bow the knee to A. W. Grimmit's all-conquering four.

Mr. Moss might have represented the Colony in the Interport against Shanghai some few years ago had not pressure of business prevented his making the trip North.

Later, however, in 1930, he did manage to play for Hong Kong playing No. 3 to B. W. Bradbury in the annual match at the Wanstead Bowling Club, London, and, although the rink was defeated, Hong Kong's four put up a good fight and only went down by 4 shots—"Skip."

TO-DAY'S ENCOUNTER

Weather permitting, a good bowls game, in the Fourth Round of the Colony Pairs Championship will be witnessed on the Craignower green this afternoon when T. Armstrong and C. Strange meet S. Eccleshall and J. Shepherd.

LUZ'S RINK PLAY TOO WELL ON SOME HEADS!

SIX BOWLS CLOSE TO JACK MAY CAUSE DEFEAT

BACK WOODS MUST BE CONSIDERED

LAST Saturday was one of the hottest days we have experienced this year and local bowlers participated in their favourite pastime under sweltering conditions.

At the same time, enthusiasm was in no way abated and each contest was played out to a satisfactory conclusion.

The greens were true and fast, and, in all probability, the form disclosed in general was a better guide to future results than that which we have seen in past matches.

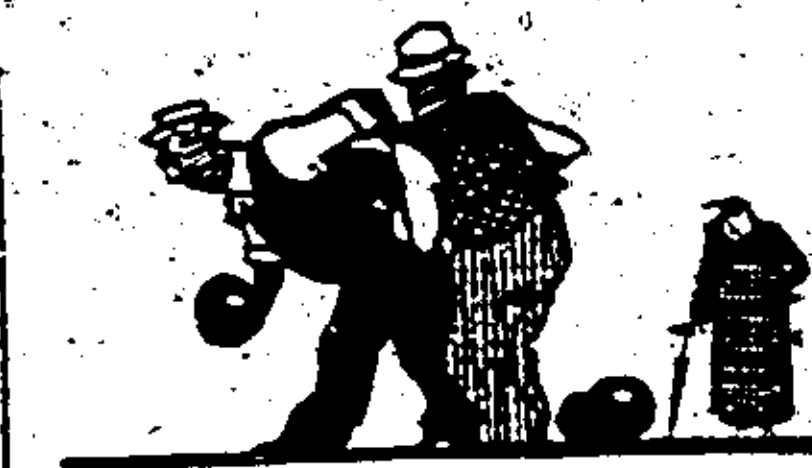

Cavanagh, who was drawn against McKelvie was in a mercurial mood, and Field, his No. 3, was right on the top of his form. The skip here, however, whose steady influence had a direct bearing on the Craignower success—did very effective work in his quiet unassuming way, but in fairness to McKelvie and his men it must be stated that any luck that was going went against them.

The Craignower green is not supposed to be dead level, and it is such the case it means that visiting Clubs are at a disadvantage to a certain extent. The general belief is that, playing from the road towards the Football Club is uphill, at the same time it must be granted that the little difficulties found in this grand old sport are very often confined to ground peculiarities which lend a greater interest to the game.

Recreio's Defeat

In some senses it is a pity that the Recreio were defeated last Saturday. The Portuguese have made such a valiant effort in recent weeks, and, even in the moment when they felt victory slipping from them they went down bravely, with C. G. Silva making desperate onslaughts on the Police citadel.

The Police team have made great progress during the course of the last few matches, and, in the opinion of many are on level terms with the best twelve in the League. The result of their match with the Portuguese side will go a long way to support this view. Meritorious as was the win of J. Shepherd and his men over J. Shepherd and his men, especially since he is almost certain to have some back bowls. Should he decide to push the jack through, the opposition would be in a greater dilemma than ever, as their own bowls, are in the way of their skip, drawing to save. The rinks who have brought off some of the biggest kills this season had to thank similar conditions for their success. The bunching of bowls round the jack is fatal. A head must be built with intelligence and foresight and a far seeing skip is contented to let one or two shots at each head.

R. W. Bradbury, for several years one of the leading skips in the Colony, is staging a comeback after a period of indifferent play.

ed, but rather on the success that W. E. Hollands' achieved when opposed to F. X. Silva's. Police Improve

In my belief, the rink skipped by the latter player is the second best four of the Recreio team, and is a much more formidable combination in every way. The Police team has now gained the confidence it so greatly required earlier in the season, and seem to be firmly established as almost certain winners on their own green.

The Craignower "A" present holders of the League Championship, were badly shaken in the battle for points with the unlikely Civil Service team. That the champions are not just moving as sweetly as many expected they would is quite apparent, and the comparative failure of Luz's four is as discouraging to the Craignower faithful, as it is astonishing.

Playing Too Well! That this rink is playing good bowls, from a drawing point of view, is admitted; the difficulty really is that at some heads it is playing too well, for a bowls in close vicinity to the jack, all belonging to one side, cannot be considered safe now-a-days, as should the opposing skip draw to the top of the jack, he has instantly placed himself in an almost unbeatable position, especially since he is almost certain to have some back bowls. Should he decide to push the jack through, the opposition would be in a greater dilemma than ever, as their own bowls, are in the way of their skip, drawing to save. The rinks who have brought off some of the biggest kills this season had to thank similar conditions for their success. The bunching of bowls round the jack is fatal. A head must be built with intelligence and foresight and a far seeing skip is contented to let one or two shots at each head.

Phillips Rink Into Corner The Kowloon C.C. were not so far away from defeating their near neighbours, the Bowling Green, as the score denoted. One of the most gratifying occurrences from a K.C.C. point of view was the brilliant play of the rink skipped by Phillips, and his men, who, in their ultimate victory over Guy's four, were rewarded.

R. W. Bradbury, for several years one of the leading skips in the Colony, is staging a comeback after a period of indifferent play.

GUTIERREZ SHIELD

PORTUGAL AND INDIA SHOULD BE PROMINENT

WALES UNLIKELY TO ENTER

AUSTRALIAN TEAM?

(By "SKIP")

NO matter how true the well-known axiom in connection with international sporting competitions being conducive to good feeling may be, there is not a vestige of doubt that it produces some very interesting results—results which are followed with greater interest than in any other kind of competition. This is the case with bowls as with other kinds of sport, so that the international contest for the Gutierrez Shield, now in its third year of existence, although some time distant, is very much in the air in bowling circles, and names are being mentioned as to what players will represent the various countries.

Although the Shield was presented by a Portuguese gentleman, so far Portugal has not been sufficiently strong to win it. England and Scotland are the only countries which have had that honour, the former being the present holders. Things will probably be different this year, however, for Portugal will be able to field a very much stronger combination this year than she has done previously.

LAWN BOWLS LEADERS AGAIN FAVOURED

Bowling Green Out For Revenge

POLICE MAY HOLD UP CRAIGENGOWER "B"

(By "SKIP")

Craignower "A" can scarcely allow themselves to be humiliated to-morrow when they meet Kowloon Docks, when taking into consideration the fact that their "B" team won so easily last week from the shipbuilders; yet the home team cannot afford to take their visitors too cheaply as they are capable of soaring to greater heights than they have done lately.

The Club de Recreio entertain the Civil Service C.C., and cannot permit defeat to be their portion again if they are to annex the championship. There does not appear to be any reason to doubt their ability in their encounter, and many imagine it to be an easy thing for the Portuguese.

Bowling Green Lesson

The Bowling Green, keeping in mind an earlier experience when pitted against the Indians, can be depended on to leave nothing to chance this time and will be out to prove the previous result was all wrong. It is fully expected that they will succeed, but the Indians may extend them to the last head.

The closest match will lie between the Police and Craignower "B". Both combinations are elated, and justly so, by last week's results, when they defeated the Recreio and the Kowloon Docks, respectively. It is quite within the power of the Police twelve to pull through.

Junior Leaders' Task

The Craignower juniors, even after the overwhelming victory they enjoyed last week, will find the Taifoo enclosure a difficult site for point collecting, and it should occasion no surprise if they fail.

The Civil Service, with a depleted team, are up against a stiff problem. They are due to meet the Recreio and should give them a good game. It is not expected that the Bowling Green will be unduly extended in their match with the Electric, but it will behoove them to be careful. Masket, that steady and reliable member of the Electric team, will unfortunately be absent this week and, his place will be hard to fill satisfactorily.

LUZ LOSES HIS 100 PER CENT. RECORD

PHILLIPS BREAKS DUCK AGAINST GUY

PURVIS MAKES POOR DEBUT

ALTHOUGH the leading positions in the Lawn Bowls League skips tables remained unchanged as the result of Saturday's match, R. F. Luz, the Craignower "A" skip, lost his 100 per cent. record—only U. M. Omar and J. Shepherd have the proud distinction.

R. P. Phillips, the K.C.C. Interporter, recorded his first victory as the result of an unexpected win over L. Guy.

J. Purvis made an inauspicious debut against W. Ward's rink, but A. Kitchell's debut was a successful one.

GOLF NOTES

(By "NIBLICK")

My remarks anent the Kowloon Golf Club's Summer Cup Final in these columns last week proved true in every respect. H. E. Mundy won from D. C. Wilson over 36 holes, the final reckoning showing 3
and 2—and what a match!

Mundy won the first two holes, halved the third, and lost the fourth to stand one up.

From then to the 32nd hole it was a real ding-dong struggle with never more than one hole either way; with the exception of the seventeenth, birdies or par were recorded at every hole, the best ball score being somewhere in the region of the 60's.

The last three holes played saw Mundy chalking four, three, three to clinch the match; victor and vanquished are to be congratulated on one of the best finals played at Kowloon this season.

END OF THE SEASON

So ends the 1934-35 season and also the conclusion of this column until October next. It has been a gloriously successful year at the Lion Rock Course and one which will be remembered as producing many innovations and additional facilities.

With a full register of members, the Club can look forward to a new year of boundless possibility and good golf.

NEW DOUBLES COMBINE
With the object of saving Perry's energy for his second singles match, the Selectors have paired Hughes with Tuckey, the Army champion; the pair have reached the semi-final round at Wimbledon.

Czechoslovakia and Germany will contest the European Zone Final on July 16 and the winners will meet America in the Inter-Zone Final for the right to enter the Challenge Round against Britain.

Last year the American ladies retained the Wightman Cup by a 5 to 2 margin, Betty Nuthall being the only British singles winner and Miss Dearman and Miss Lyle winning their doubles match. The other members of the British team were Miss Round, Miss Scriven, and Mrs.
L. A. Godfree.

STOKES'S $3,900 PROFIT

Stoke City last season made a profit of £3,900, after paying maintenance, repairs and renewals.

S. CHINA'S STIFF OBSTACLE AGAINST POLICE

Five matches are down for decision in the "D" Division of the Lawn Tennis League to-day, the most interesting clash being that between the Army Tennis Club and the Kowloon Dock Recreation Club at Sookpoo, weather permitting.

The Indian Recreation Club,
who, together with the Radio Sports Club, are at present leading in the table, should have no difficulty in taking both points of the Bowling Green Club, whom they encounter at King's Park, while South China will probably be fully extended by the Police at the Valley.

Police v South China (Happy Valley)
Army T. C. v Kowloon Docks (S'poo)
C.R.C. v K.F.C. (Causeway Bay)
B.G.C. v I.R.C. (Austin Road)
K.C.C. v C.S.C.C. (King's Park)

TWICE UNCONSCIOUS IN MOTOR-CYCLE CLASSIC

Speedway Riders Bogey Spot

CRASHES IN IDENTICAL PLACE TWICE

London, June 6.

There were many mishaps at the New Cross Speedway last night when Tom Farndon, the holder won the first round of his British Individual Championship with R. Case, by two runs to nil.

In the opening heat Case hit a bump on the first corner and both he and his machine somer-saulted into the air.

Case was rendered unconscious in the middle of the track, and with the stewards refusing to stop the race, he was nearly run over by Farndon, who won in 62.4 seconds.

Miraculous Escape

Case recovered but in the second heat fell again on the first bend at exactly the same spot.
This time he crashed into the safety fence, tore down 10 yards of it and was wedged in the wire netting.

He was carried off again unconscious.

team does not win the tennis trophy from England this year it will not be the fault of the team's trainer, Harry L. Hillman.

L.B.U. WORLD BOXING CHAMPIONS

Jackie Brown And Max Baer Not Recognised

LIST PUBLISHED

Paris, June 10.

In their ranking list of world
Boxing champions, issued following their annual meeting, the International Boxing Union refuses to recognise Jackie Brown (England) as fly-weight champion, and Max Baer (America) as heavyweight title-holder.

In each case it was ruled that they had relinquished their titles through failure to accept the challenges issued on behalf of Valentin Angelman (France) and Pierre Charles (Belgium) respectively. The list is as follows:—

Flyweight, vacant; Bantamweight, Sampelhi (Spain); Featherweight,
Freddie Miller (America); Lightweight, Tony Canzoneri (America); Welterweight, Barney Ross (America); Middleweight, Marcel Tili (France); Light-heavyweight, vacant; Heavyweight, vacant.—Reuter.

BUT STILL NOT IN SAME CLASS AS V.R.C. AND S.C.A.

Fowler Steps Into Schreuder's Shoes

LINCOLNS TEAM WELL BEATEN IN PRACTICE GAME

(By "CRAWL")

Playing an excellent game, the European Y.M.C.A. yesterday
trounced the Headquarters Wing Lincolnshire Regiment, by 6 goals to 1 in a fast and exciting water-polo encounter in the former's pool, the outstanding feature of the game being the excellent understanding shown by the winning team.

There is no doubt about it that the "Y" are improving in every game, but have some distance to go yet before they can hope to accomplish anything against any of the Colony's other leading teams such as the Victoria Recreation Club or the South China Athletic Association.

It was not that the "Y" were a much faster team than their opponents, but their passing and shooting at times reached the standard attained by the "Y's" brilliant team of two years ago, when they swept everything before them.

G. H. Fowler is fast succeeding W. Schreuder as a leader of exceptional merit. His scoring ability is definitely good, and I doubt if there is another forward in the Colony with as great a repertoire of shots as he has to-day.

Opportunism And Good Play

His four goals were not scored by means of easy openings, but were the result of opportunism and good play. His unexpected volleys—he scored two goals in such manner—were executed at the right moment and calculated to catch the opposing goal-keeper
"napping," and he did.

His two other goals were very good and ranked among the best seen in the bath for over a year.
Goldman and Ferrett, the respec-
up to scratch, and Lange made himself very useful by unexpectedly taking the soldiers' defence unawares by swimming through the other forwards breaking away to give shooting space.

Kerr played another very strenuous and useful game in defence.

RUGBY MEETING AT FOOTBALL CLUB

A meeting of all playing members of the Rugby section of the Hong Kong Football Club will be held at the Club-house, Happy Valley, on Friday, July 26, at 5.30 p.m. to elect office-bearers for the forthcoming season.

Splashes By Crawl

There is promise of some good week-end swimming at North Point next week where a team of Canton swimmers, headed by Chan Ki-chung and Wong Ki-leung, will probably meet the V.R.C. and the Chinese Bathing Club in a series of water-polo games.

It was thought possible to arrange a water-polo match against the European "Y", but unfortunately the latter were unable to accede to the request as several of their players are otherwise engaged.

The recent formation of the Mak Ngah Aquatic Association, a branch of the South China Athletic Association, is the most interesting topic in the swimming world at present.

Mak Ngah Association

Apparently a rift has been caused in South China swimming circles, and the new Association, although comprised of members of the parent body, do not compete in any of the latter's activities, but have their own races and water-polo games.

As a result of this, South China have lost some of their finest swimmers, and, as there is a possibility that Kwok Chun-hang will become a member of the new body on his return to the Colony, they may lose the services of probably the best Chinese all-rounder in the Colony.

It is interesting to note that nothing further has been heard of the Shanghai Cantonese Swimming Association's proposal to send a team to the Colony during this month.

Malayan Chinese Swimmers

I heard last night that there is more than a mere likelihood that the Singapore and Malayan Chinese swimmers will be competing at the China National Games in Shanghai on October 10.

This being so, the Colony champions may be given another chance against the Malayan Chinese, who gave such an excellent performance here some years ago.

Ng Mong-guan, the veteran of that team who achieved such a splendid success against L. Rosa-Pereira and others in the dual meet some years ago, has recently staged a remarkable comeback among Malayan Chinese swimmers, and he may be among those making the trip to Shanghai.

Champion Coming

Among others who will probably compete in the North are Tan
Wee-chwee, the present Straits
Chinese champion, Seow Sien chye, captain of water-polo and an excellent sprinter, Teo Siewsun, sprinter Tan Hong-seng, one of the smallest, built swimmers
but very good, and Goh Koonkiat a diver.

One of that famous team who competed here several years ago is at present the swimming coach of the South China Athletic Association, and I understand, is teaching Miss Yeung Sau-king a new stroke.

Not much has been seen of China's foremost lady swimmer since her trip North some months ago, but I hear that she is in strict training for the National Meeting.

Footballer-Swimmer

Wong Ki-leung, one of the Mak Ngah Association's finest sprinters, is none other than Wong Wing of South China Football fame, and captain of the Chinese Far Eastern soccer eleven!

I hear that in view of the "Y"
being unable to field a team against them, they are endeavouring to fix up another fixture, possibly against the Victoria Recreation Club before Wong Ki-leung leaves Hong Kong for Malaya with the South China footballers.

Barney Ross had successfully for the waterweight boxing title when he defeated Jimmy McLean (left) in a 15-round battle at the Polo Grounds, New York last month. The picture records a bad moment in the fight for Henry. He crashed in with both hands swinging, but was pulled out short with a well-timed left jab, and went down, crashing back, as shown. Henry and Barney have now battled thrice for their welterweight title, and Barney now has it for the second time.

Rudy Vallee and Helen Morgan are co-starred in Warner Bros. latest musical hit, "Sweet Music," which is being shown at the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow.

SHORT SHOTS

SHIRLEY Temple marches on 23 fame. Now she is included in the "World-Wide Illustrated Encyclopedia."

Frank Burdage will direct Marlene Dietrich and Gary Cooper (remember them together in her first Hollywood film "Morocco") in "Pearl Necklace."

Many of the film stars are rabid stamp collectors. Sylvia Sydney especially favours Oriental stamps, while Marlene Dietrich has already a marvellous collection for her daughter Maria, and Bing Crosby has started an album for his three sons.

Harold Lloyd is starring in the Paramount release "The Milky Way," wherein he plays the role of a milkman.

Gene Markey indignantly denies that he and wife Joan Bennett are separating. "In fact they are ideally happy, and contemplate taking a half-share in a magnificent up-to-date farm with Joan's mother."

George Zucco, who will be remembered for his fine work in the Orient in the "Holloway-Courtesan" Company, which also included Claud Allister, is playing an important role

Ann Dvorak takes the part of a singing dancer in Warner Bros. latest comedy musical, "Sweet Music," which will be screened at the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow.

In the latest Conrad Veidt film "King of the Damned," with Noah Beery and Helen Vinson.

Frances Day is opposite Jack Hulbert in his latest picture "Dancing Shoes." By the way, it was recently revealed that the Hulberts (Miss Geely, Courtesan, and Jack) have a contract that gives them $100,000 a year between them, while Jack Buchanan and Jessie Matthews are in the $10,000 per picture class.

Jean Harlow will be co-starred with William Powell and Myrna Loy in "Wife Versus Secretary."

TULLIO CARMINATI STARRED WITH LILIAN HARVEY

GINGER ROGERS IDEALLY CAST IN "ROMANCE OF MANHATTAN"

RUDY VALLEE, ANNE DVORAK AND SPLENDID CAST IN NEW WARNER MUSICAL

By Diane

THE association of Tullio Carminati (who will ever forget him in "One Night of Love") and Lilian Harvey is a happy combination in "Let's Live To-night." If you are looking for pure undiluted romance this picture will please you, although it must be admitted that both stars have had better material.

Miss Harvey looks lovely but fragile in diaphanous chiffon, with diamonds in her golden curls, while the suave fascinating Carminati will set feminine hearts fluttering as he always does. Monte Carlo, fragrant gardens and yachts adrift on moonlit waters—the setting is ideal.

There is a simple story, but it hardly matters. Just a few misunderstandings and the discovery that the simple charm of the fair heroine means more to the manly hero than all the fascinations of worldly women like Tala Birell. Also Hugh Williams, as the brother who almost wins the girl, does his best to make the story plausible, and highly agreeable entertainment.

Miss a film in which Tullio Carminati appears? Decidedly, no. He is especially charming when he sings "Love Passes By." Recommended. (Queen's).

"Sweet Music"

This Warner musical is for the Rudy Vallee "fans," and this famous crooner-band leader still more than holds his own, "be it noted."

Handsomely staged, with haunting tuneless songs and a fragment of a story. Just avoid trying to find out what it is all about and concentrate on the music and the really surprising performance turned in by Anne Dvorak. (Don't forget she once taught the steps to Jean Crawford at the M.G.M. studio, till Karen Morley got her a job as an actress). Anne is sensationally good at dancing, singing and acting.

Rudy is really human and has lost most of the "Heaven's gift to women" manner.

The action is back-stage and we have Helen Morgan doing her usual "weepy" song, also Allen Jenkins, Robert Armstrong, Ned Sparks and Alice White, not forgetting the Milt Britton Band. (Personally their antics bore me, but the public clearly loves to see the clowning). You will enjoy this and surely come away humming "Sweet Music" and "Fare Thee Well, Annabelle." Recommended. (Alhambra).

"Mark Of The Vampire"

Any picture presenting Lionel Barrymore gives you some good acting, but in this he has to fight against an incredible story. All the old horror stand-bys are used, dead bodies tangled in cobwebs, rats, noises, high wind and fog and, to make it more Dracula-like, Bela Lugosi is in the cast.

Elizabeth Allan is just asked to wander round with a vacant look while Henry Wadsworth does his best as the courageous young man. Jean Herscholt can always be relied upon for a good performance.

Allen Jenkins and Alice White feature in the comedy "Sweet Music," which opens at the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow.

For those who favour supernatural goings-on this picture will no doubt afford interest. Tod Browning the director has a passion for gloomy lighting which adds to the effectiveness and he has not failed to pile on the horrors. (Queen's).

"Babbai"

Sinclair Lewis' famous novel with Guy Kibbee and Aline MacMahon. There is truly not much connection with the famous story, but thanks to the stars and excellent cast there are plenty of laughs.

Guy Kibbee plays the role of the American "little man" to perfection, and Miss MacMahon is ideal as the wife who always gets him out of a tight corner. If you treat this as a good comedy, not as a film of the book, you will enjoy it. (Alhambra).

"$10 Raise"

Edward Everett Horton is a mousy little bookkeeper who is so prompt that the shopkeepers along the route he goes to his work can set their clocks by him, and so unadventurous that he has worked untold years without daring to ask for the $10 raise that would enable him to marry Emily (Karen Morley).

The popular comedian is ideally

cast, terribly amusing, yet withal at times pathetic. He never overdoes his chronic confusion, even in the scene where he is drunk for the first time in his life.

Karen Morley is his romance and Glen Boles and Rosina Lawrence are the charming pair of impetuous lovers. Alan Dinehart and Berton Churchill fill their roles creditably.

E. E. H. carries the success of the picture upon his very capable shoulders, and you will find him as amusing as ever. (King's).

"Great Expectations"

The first of the recent Dickens "cycle," and Universal have done the job of transferring this mystery story to the screen in first-class manner.

Henry Hull (famous Broadway actor) makes his talkie debut as the convict whose gratitude for a boy's sympathy becomes his ruling passion. Eleven-year-old George Bralston has already made a name for himself on the Radio, and in one other picture, "No Greater Glory." Anne Howard is the other child.

Phillips Holmes is the boy brought up with great expectations of great wealth from a secret benefactor, and theatre-goers who know their American stage will recall the name of Florence Reid, once acknowledged as the greatest actress of her time. Jane Wyatt, too, is another re-creation from the Broadway stage.

The cast is a very big one and the players do all they can to bring their parts to life. More of this later. Coming shortly to the King's.

PROVIDED you like the dishevelled Czechoslovakian actor Francis Lederer, you will be charmed by "Romance In Manhattan," because it is perfectly fitted to the star.

It begins in melodrama, when the young immigrant from Middle Europe, scheduled to be deported for lack of his landing fee, leaps into New York Bay and swims ashore.

Then the story becomes delightful comedy when our hero, wandering in an amiable daze up Broadway, meets a golden-hearted chorus girl (adorable Ginger Rogers), who feeds, shelters and eventually marries him.

Undoubtedly this picture will do more to popularise Francis Lederer than his previous two, "Man of Two Worlds" and "The Pursuit of Happiness." He is gay, whimsical and yet restrained and seems perfectly at home in his role. Miss Rogers could not be anything but outstanding. Her young brother, played by Jimmy Butler, makes the third of the perfect trio, while Sidney Toler, J. Farrell Macdonald and Donald Meek, with understanding direction by Stephen Roberts, all lift the picture to a rare height. (King's).

"Kiss And Make-Up"

A chance to see a delightful trio: Genevieve Tobin looking really lovely, Cary Grant the ideally handsome leading man, and Edward Everett Horton the much-morbid husband.

Hero Cary Grant finds himself in trouble when he falls in love with his most lovely client (Miss Tobin) and the airy story tells of his disillusionment, which provides a bright amusing comedy, especially the absurd finish. Helen Mack is in support as the understanding secretary. (Queen's).

"One Hour Late"

Joe Morrison the crooner, whom we previously saw in the W. C. Fields picture "The Old-fashioned Way," has developed a nice screen personality and makes a strong bid for success in this sprightly little yarn depicting the love of an office clerk for a stenographer, Helen Twelvetrees, and their difficulties when their romance is nearly upset by their "boss," Conrad Nagel, and a file clerk, Arline Judge.

Quite a few laughs and some pathos. Entire cast is good, but it is Morrison's sweet voice singing "Me Without You" that makes this above being "just another picture." (Alhambra).

Star, Kowloon

"Richest Girl in the World," with Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea in a far-fetched story, plus the whole cast doing their utmost to make something of the inferior material.

Followed by "Broadway Through a Keyhole," Grand melodrama. Paul Kelly turns in a perfect performance as the gangster, who helps heroine Constance Cummings to success and love. The late Eues Colombo, too, contributed his best screen work, while the female star is pleasing. Well worth seeing twice. (Continued on Page 12)

Guy Kibbee, screen leader in "Babbai," which is showing at the Alhambra Theatre to-day.

Ginger Rogers and Francis Lederer are in "Romance In Manhattan," which is coming on Sunday to the King's Theatre.

Here is an interesting quartet from RKO-Radio's "Romance in Manhattan," which will show on Sunday at the King's Theatre. It is a story with an O. Henry touch, involving a poor immigrant, a chorus-girl, an Irish policeman, and a shy lawyer who seeks to have an adopted son of America deported to his native land. At left is Sidney Toler, then come the stars, Francis Lederer and Ginger Rogers, and at right, J. Farrell Macdonald.

Russia And Japan

Russia has everything to lose and absolutely nothing to gain by any crazy war adventures at the present stage of her development, and it looks very much as though the militarists in Japan, recognising this, are doing everything possible to provoke the country into some show of aggression by the repeated frontier incidents, of which the Soviet have recently been complaining. Of course, we may expect the usual bland explanations and denials from Japan, whose protestations of innocence in every conceivable contingency are beginning to wear a little thin before the public opinion of the rest of the world. Attributing the basest motives to everybody else, she never fails to assert her blamelessness, whether for first causes of trouble or the results, usually very much to her benefit, of pinprick provocations. We are too far away from the actual events to be able to offer anything better than an opinion, but from the record of past events of the same character it may safely be stated that Japan's attempt to "advance" the cause of her Manchurian hirelings, in the phrase of the Provida, probably sums up the position with as much truth as any other reading would have done.

These manifestations of militarist policy are only further steps along a road towards complete hegemony in Eastern Asia which has been the obvious goal of Japanese policy ever since the rape of Manchuria. One by one, implacable as fate almost, the succeeding steps in the realisation of that programme have evinced themselves in Japanese policy. The tragedy of the thing is that this shameless and shameful exploitation of weaker neighbours has been connived at, winked at and generally permitted by the spineless policy, individually and collectively, of the Western Powers who were alone influential enough and strong enough to sit down hard on these dreams of expansion when they first appeared. It is wearisome to go on repeating that firmness at the beginning would have put an effective stop to the first tentative experiments; that with every fresh evidence that she could get away with almost anything, Japan was further encouraged to go the whole hog; that each successive step has been more brazen and unjustified than the last; that, in short, Japan has received every encouragement by the default of the rest of the world in its obvious duty. It would be even more wearisome to recount the hesitating, spineless and utterly insufficient verbal protests and feeble denunciations which the rest of the world indulged in when at last its conscience was pricked at the wanton exploitation. The thing was almost a caricature; one could almost see the bedridden old man unnecessarily telling the thug who was robbing him that he was a naughty boy, and mustn't do that.

The provocation of the Soviet, however, is bringing a little more reality into the situation if it is to be further indulged in. Russia, besides now being a member of the League, has a mutual assistance pact with France, and is therefore in not quite so defenceless a position as she would appear to be to the militarists of Japan. In other words, there is every possibility that a showdown would not be such a walkover for Japan as her militarists seem to think. There is precious little love lost between Japan and America also, and it is not entirely beyond the bounds of possibility that America might be drawn into the fight if ever the chance came. But, as in most world affairs which entail a trial of strength, it is the attitude of Britain which in the end is the most conclusive factor. A little firmness years ago would have done wonders; there is still time for an uncompromising statement of policy which will stop the rot. Now that our half-baked Socialists, with their continual prating of pacifism at any price, have been removed from the conduct of Britain's affairs, it is to be hoped that something more than ineffectual bleating will eventuate—such, for instance, as a definite statement of our interests in the case and the steps we propose to take should they be further menaced by not only the whole-sale unilateral ignoring of treaties and obligations solemnly entered into, but also the cynical abandonment of every principle of peaceable international relations.

MAGAZINE GAP ROAD LANDSLIDE

A serious accident was narrowly averted at 1 p.m. yesterday when a slight landslide occurred in Magazine Gap Road, missing the sentry box there by a margin of only 15 yards. The road was entirely blocked until cookies from the Public Works Department cleared the earth and rocks away.

Hong Kong rainfall for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. to-day was 0.85 inch. The total since January 1 has been 33.29 inches, against an average of 40.60 inches.

R.A. BREEZES

With Mr. Sickett's adherence to the protestants against the Royal Academy the breezes which it has often experienced may be said to rise to sale force.

Of our other most eminent contemporary painters Mr. Wilson Steer, the only artist O.M., has never been an R.A. and Mr. Augustus John, who only became one in 1928, long after his reputation was secure, has never professed great respect for the Academy.

Whistler, in the Victorian era, was also a Burlington House heretic.

The President, however, has the satisfaction of knowing that he still remains Mr. Sickett's "very dear Llewellyn."

Sir William's most famous predecessor, Sir Joshua Reynolds, was less fortunate with his own most distinguished R.A. Gainsborough. A long-continued coolness between them ultimately caused Gainsborough to refuse to exhibit at all at the Academy.

On his deathbed, however, Gainsborough sent for Reynolds and died saying to him, "We are all going to heaven, and Vandyke is of the company."

HE WAS NO PACIFIST

Each guest at the "Dominion Night" dinner given by the Treasurer and Benchers of the Middle Temple to the Dominion Premiers and other Dominion representatives during the Jubilee in London received a copy of a brochure describing the historical connection of Middle Templars with the founding of the Empire.

The best thing in it is the quotation from Sir Humphrey Gilbert's "Discourse," which persuaded his younger brother Adrian and other Middle Templars to make a second attempt to discover the North-West Passage. It concludes:

He is not worthy to live at all that for fear or danger of death, sheweth his Country's service and his own honour seeing death is inevitable and the fame of virtue immortal. Hardly in the best traditions of our modern pacifism.

OBSOLETE VOTING SYSTEMS

ELECTORAL REFORM IN ENGLAND

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION FOR LARGE CITIES?

(By Rt. Hon. Winston S. Churchill)

WE are approaching a general election. No one except Mr. Baldwin knows when it will come. Will it be the autumn of this year or the spring of next? Or will the Government await the compulsory operation of the Quinquennial Act? Whenever it comes it will be a great pity that the Government has not carried a measure of electoral reform.

Under the present system it is easier for a Socialist to get into Parliament than a candidate of any other party. Although there are certainly four or five million Liberal voters in the country hardly any can get into Parliament at all. Indeed, it is expected that barely a score of independent Liberals will be returned when the next appeal is made.

The Conservative Party managers are quite content to see Liberals and independent elements of all kinds blotted out because they think they will be more easily able to beat the Socialists. But this is a short-sighted view. All experience shows that the mass of the voters soon tire of any Government and incline strongly to the mood: "Give the other side a chance."

"New World Order"

But when this means putting in power a Government which is quite inadequate to bear the weight of Imperial administration; when it spells a financial crisis and an industrial set-back; when it means the arrival in power of men who are—nominally at least—committed to the nationalisation of all the means of production, distribution and exchange, and who are full of nonsense about "a new world order" of which they have only the airiest conceptions; then this sickness of the electorate should not be aggravated by the voting system.

Another vice of our present methods is its destruction of the personalities of great cities.

Why should Manchester, Liverpool, Sheffield, Leeds, Bradford, Glasgow and Edinburgh not bring a collective weight to bear? Instead of this they are all carved up into meaningless blocks of houses, none of which embodies the authority, the dignity, or the weight of these great communities. The House of Commons would be far richer and our national life more securely founded if these cities with traditions and character of their own returned men who had the right to speak as Conservatives, Liberals, or Socialists for the whole city.

Men would become stronger in relation to political machinery.

A fine of $75, in default two months' hard labour was imposed on Shiu Wah, unemployed, by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning for obtaining by false pretences, 50 gunny bags from the Tak Cheung gunny shop of No. 41, First Street.

Teja Singh, an unemployed Indian, charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy with entering the Colony without a valid passport, was yesterday fined $50, with the alternative of a month's hard labour.

From July 15 to October 1 the Chancery of the French Consulate will be closed to the public in the afternoon, and office hours will be only from 9.30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Mrs. A. L. Shields, wife of Mr. A. L. Shields, Principal of Shewan, Tomes & Co., arrived in Hong Kong to-day by the B.M.S. Empress of Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Ballantyne, and Master Donald Ballantyne, are among the passengers on the President Hoover leaving to-night for Manila. They plan an extended tour of Europe, prior to returning to the United States on furlough. Mr. Ballantyne is sub-manager of the Chase Bank in Hong Kong.

It is a bad thing in any society when the power and influence of individuals can only be exerted through their getting hold of the caucus or obtaining an official position. An appreciable part of the freedom and culture of British public life has arisen from the fact that we have always had a large class of independent men who counted.

Reform Needed

Both, therefore, on the grounds of securing a truer representation of the people and of strengthening the House of Commons, I am in favour of electoral reform. I suggest three practical steps. First, the application of proportional representation in the first instance to the great cities. This is no more than was advocated by the House of Lords in 1918, and by a majority of the last Parliamentary Conference on Electoral Reform in 1930. Nay, it is less; for I would not propose to extend this system to the counties.

Whereas proportional representation in the cities would mean a higher focusing of public thought, its extension through the counties would make the areas so wide as to impair the relations between a member and his constituency. Let us begin with the cities and establish them as coherent, living, forceful entities in our national politics.

Secondly, the exercise of the franchise should be made compulsory. Citizens who neglect to discharge this public duty—no longer a privilege, for it belongs to all—should be punished by a fine. It is a shocking thing to see an election like that recently in Edinburgh, where barely half the electors took the trouble to go to the poll. If democracy is to maintain itself, there must be the conscious participation of the whole body of the voters in the responsibility for the good government of the country. The bigger the poll, the healthier the vote.

Thirdly, we should improve the quality of the franchise by making a difference between the household or head of the family and his or her children, or dependents. I would therefore give a second vote to every man or woman who pays the rent and the rates of any dwelling in which more than two persons habitually reside. This would certainly involve four or five million persons. Many of them would be young; a proportion of them women.

Real Responsibility

They would all be persons who had to face the real problems of national life with a responsibility quite different from that of lodgers of all kinds of both sexes, dependent or otherwise. This proposal raises no issue of rank or class, of party or wealth, of age or sex. It involves the disfranchisement, actual or prospective, of no class. It secures a greater weight to the more responsible citizens.

We rightly pride ourselves upon our parliamentary institutions. They are the symbols and safeguards of British liberty. They will be tested in the coming years as never before. The continued decay of the House of Commons, a

New York, To-day.—For the first time since the commencement of the Baseball season, a full programme of "double-headers" featured both the National and American Leagues.

The Giants made a fine show in their clash with the Braves and firmly established themselves at the top of the National League by winning both encounters, while in the American League, Boston surprised the leaders in their first clash, Miller clouting his third four-bagger of the season to help nose out the Yankees. The latter, however, gained their revenge in the return encounter by a 7 to 1 margin.

Results, as called by Reuter, were:

MURDERED FOR A GOLD TOOTH

A Strange Crime

Warsaw. Two unemployed men have been arrested in Warsaw when endeavoring to dispose of a gold tooth to a dentist.

The police had been waiting for them for a fortnight. It is alleged that they secured a wealthy farmer and asked for a light for their cigarettes. When the farmer acquiesced and disclosed the possession of a gold-filled tooth, they murdered him on the spot and wrenched the tooth from the dead man's jaw.

MOTHER AND SON HANGED

Seven-Year-Old Crime Mystery Solved

APPALLING MURDER

Georgetown (Delaware). A mother and son died on the gallows at Georgetown (Delaware), on June 7.

The condemned couple were Mrs. May Carey, aged 52, and her eldest child, Howard, aged 27, who were convicted of murdering Robert H. Hitchens, a brother of Mrs. Carey, in 1927, with the object of collecting his life insurance of $2,000 ($400).

Mrs. Carey and two of her three sons, Howard and James, it was shown at the trial hid in Hitchens's home.

As Hitchens entered he was struck on the head, but though half stunned, he tried to flee. Mrs. Carey, Howard and James then jumped on him, and Mrs. Carey beat her brother to death with a sledgehammer.

For years the crime remained unsolved. Then a few months ago Mrs. Carey's youngest son, Lawrence, was arrested for house-breaking. He was questioned about the death of Hitchens and at last made a confession.

As James was only 16 years old at the time of the murder he was sentenced to life imprisonment, but his mother and elder brother were sentenced to death. Lawrence, who was only 14 years old at the time of the crime, was not implicated.

AMERICANS SHINE AT WIMBLEDON

Hughes and Tuckey (Gt. Britain), who will probably be the English Davis Cup doubles pair, merely took their encounter against Andrews and Lyttelton Rogers as a practice match and did not give a very striking exhibition, simply because they did not have to. They will have to play much better tennis to beat Wilmer Allison and John van Ryn, the 1929-30 American holders, whom they will meet in the semi-final round.

Perry again wins. In the quarter-final of the Mixed Doubles championship, Mr. and Mrs. Hopman, of Australia, beat F. H. D. Wilde and Miss Kathleen Stammers in three sets, while in another tie in the same round, Fred Perry and Miss Dorothy Round, of Gt. Britain, eliminated C. E. Maitroy, another New Zealander, and Miss Mary Healey in three sets.

Indications point towards another meeting between von Cramm and Perry, who meet to-day in the singles final, as the result of a German champion and Frau Sperling defeating D. P. Turnbull and Signorina Valerio in three sets in the remaining quarter final.

Perry Defending His Title To-day

VON CRAMM FIRST GERMAN FINALIST SINCE 1914

To-day at Wimbledon Fred J. Perry, holder of the American, French, Belgian and Bournemouth titles, will defend the Wimbledon crown he won last year from Jack Crawford against Gottfried von Cramm, the first German finalist in the famous tournament since 1914, the year of Norman Brookes' triumph.

There is little to choose between the players when seen at their best, but it is generally expected that Perry will retain his title, though Britain lost the ladies' championship when Dorothy Round bowed to Joan Hartigan.

DELEGATES OF EMPIRE IN LONDON

WELCOMED BY PREMIER

MUTUAL PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

London, To-day.

At a luncheon in Westminster Hall yesterday Mr. Stanley Baldwin, as Prime Minister and Chairman of the Executive of the United Kingdom Branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association, officially welcomed a widely representative gathering of delegates from branches of the Association throughout the Empire.

The delegations, which in several cases are headed by the Speaker of the respective House of Commons and include the leading members of the Opposition as well as the Government party, have come to London at the invitation of the United Kingdom branch to mark the occasion of the Silver Jubilee and to confer unofficially, that is, as members of the Empire Parliamentary Association and not as representatives of Governments or Parliaments, on problems of mutual interest, including agricultural policy, overseas trade, shipping, migration and monetary policy.

A comprehensive programme has been arranged to enable the visitors to acquaint themselves with conditions and activities in this country and problems, not only of national and imperial interest but those affecting provincial and municipal life and connected with industrial and social organisations. The delegates will be received by the King and will attend the three Jubilee reviews of the defence services. Social engagements include parties to be given by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Kent.

In his speech Mr. Baldwin said that the English people had always preferred committees to dictators, elections to street fighting, and talking shop to revolutionary tribunals. The Parliamentary Government, he said, had not failed where it had grown, and had formed appropriate traditions—British Wireless Service.

A DISAPPEARING ELEPHANT

No Longer Able To Vanish

HEAVY DAMAGES CLAIMED FROM MOTORIST

Elephants have been in the news recently.

One was the star turn in a Geneva magician's act. It was billed as the "only disappearing elephant in the world."

On the way home to its stables one night, a motorist ran into it. The magician is now suing the motorist for 20,000 francs (about £1,300) on the ground that the animal was so badly injured that it can no longer disappear on the stage.

Another elephant, belonging to an Australian travelling circus, escaped and began demolishing an hotel. The proprietor ran out and attempted to drive it away.

Infuriated, the elephant turned and chased him, and was about to fell him with its trunk when a neighbour dashed to the rescue, and managed to keep the maddened animal at bay until its keeper arrived.

In Assam an experiment, believed to be unique, has been made in training elephants to plough.

To-day's Short Story

Absent-minded

By Luigi Pirandello

IN the dust and glare of an August day, so hot that one could scarcely breathe, a third-class hearse drew up at a new house in one of those new quarters in Rome near the Tiber. The hour was three of the afternoon.

All those brand-new houses, many still tenantless, newly built to receive life, seemed to stare through their curtainless windows at that black hearse. Instead of life, they were looking at death before life!

The hearse had come slowly, at a crawl. The driver, half-asleep on the box, his many old topper tipped on his nose, his leg propped on the splash-board, had stopped at the first house that was shuttered. A jerk at the reins, a pull at the brake, and he had settled himself down to sleep more comfortably.

But suddenly from an adjoining chemist's sprang a hairy, red-faced giant.

"Heh!" he cried. "Heh! . . . Don't you know where you're going? Not here . . . further on . . ."

The driver, without a word, moved to a house further on. Here or there, it was the same to him. Again he settled himself to sleep.

"Ass!" muttered the chemist with a shrug. "Doesn't he know that all houses are shuttered at this hour? He must be new to the job."

Which was true. And he loathed that job, did Calabrino. But he had been a conciierge and had quarrelled with the tenants; had

TRESPASSING ON AERODROME

Light Fine Imposed As First Time

Five female grass-cutters appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning charged with trespassing on the Kai Tak Aerodrome yesterday; each were bound over in a sum of $10, for a period of one year.

Inspector Chester-Woods, of the Kowloon City Police Station, stated that on the previous day the defendants had been warned about trespassing.

At the conclusion of the case Mr. Wynne Jones said that he had let the defendants off lightly as it was the first time that a charge for this particular case had been referred. He warned the defendants that if they did it again they would be punished, he also told them to tell all their friends.

HE "RIDICULED" MUSSOLINI

Diplomatic Incident In Rumania

Braila (Rumania). A black cap, similar to the one Mussolini wears when dressed in fascist uniform, caused a diplomatic incident in the city of Braila.

Signor Enrico Gironi, the Italian Consul in the town, objected to the fact that a music-hall comedian, Alex Werner, appeared on the stage of a local cabaret wearing the cap.

The comedian was alleged to have ridiculed fascism and Mussolini by wearing the cap. His performance was stopped and the cap confiscated by the authorities.

been a sacristan and had quarrelled with the priests; had been a cabby and had quarrelled with the cab-owners. Now, finding nothing better, he had taken this job with a funeral furnisher. He would quarrel, of course, with the funeral furnisher—he would quarrel with anyone. It was enough to look at him. Hunched-up shoulders, putty-coloured face, pale, snappy, little eyes, and a nose like a strawberry. Why like a strawberry? Why, of course, for everyone to take him for a tippler when he couldn't abide even the smell of wine! . . . Life was filthy. Pah! He was sick of it. Some day he'd take a leap into the river, have a quarrel (his last) with the water, and be done with it.

Meanwhile, he slept; under the blazing sun, eaten alive by flies and mosquitoes; waiting for his first fare—the corpse.

After a good half-hour, from a door at the end of the street, on the opposite side, there emerged the coffin.

Chewing a blasphemy, he hurried up with the hearse, while the bearers, panting under a miserable bier, were grumbling and swearing.

"The devil take you! Didn't they tell you the number of the house?"

Not a flower, not a ribbon on that bier!

Calabrino, without a word, waited till the coffin was in its place, then moved away at a crawl, his topper as before tipped on his nose, a leg resting on the splashboard.

Behind, on foot, was a solitary mourner—a woman. Hanging over her face was a long black veil, the one she wore on Sundays to Mass. Her dress of black, patterned with yellow, trailed on the ground. Held above her head was a white parasol.

She was walking with head bent—more perhaps in shame than in grief.

"Cheerio, Rosina! Have a pleasant walk!" said the chemist with a snigger as she passed him.

Raising her head she looked at him through her veil, waved to him kindly with a black-mittened hand, then lowered it again to hitch up her skirt behind, showing down-at-heel shoes.

From an upper window came a loud voice:

"Poor, poor Professor! buried like a dog!"

And from another: "Not much of a professor, with only a slavery to mourn him!"

Those voices ringing from above sounded strange in the silent street!

$150,000 DIAMOND

Travels To U.S. For Half-A-Crown REGISTERED PACKET

New York. It became known in New York recently that the Jonker diamond, which was bought for about $150,000 by the American jeweller, Mr. Harry Winston, had travelled to the United States as an ordinary registered packet in the liner President Roosevelt.

The cost of sending it across the Atlantic was a trifle more than half-a-crown—the charge for registration, postage, and postal insurance. Mr. Winston had taken the precaution, however, of insuring the diamond for $200,000.

When the stone arrived in New York it was taken in an armoured car to the Appraiser's office of the United States Customs, where it was inspected by officials before being handed to Mr. Winston. He was not called upon to pay any duty, as the stone was charged on import stones.

FURTHER DEMANDS FROM JAPAN

Inflammatory Bills Distributed

Shanghai, To-day.—An ominous situation is developing at Shanghai as the result of the representation by Mr. Ariyoshi, Japanese Ambassador to China, to Mr. Tang Yü-jen, Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, five demands arising out of the publication in New Life of an article allegedly derogatory to the Emperor of Japan.

The demands are:

1. Dismissal of Wu Hsin-ya, Director of the Bureau of Social Affairs for the Municipality of Greater Shanghai.
2. Abolition of the Kuomintang Headquarters, Shanghai.
3. Suppression of the Blue Shirts (the Chinese Fascist Party), in Shanghai.
4. An apology from the Chinese Government.
5. A guarantee from the Kuomintang authorities at Nanking that they take effective measures to prevent the occurrence of similar incidents in the future.

The Japanese flagship Iwate has postponed her scheduled departure northwards indefinitely. Inflammatory handbills are being distributed among the Japanese community, the more unruly elements of which are spoiling for trouble.

CHANG CONSULTED.—The Chinese Government's anxiety is indicated by the visit of Hwang Shao-sung, Governor of Chekiang, and Chu Chiah-wa to Chengtu to consult Chiang Kai-shek.

They went by plane and arrived there to-day. There is every indication that the Japanese civil authorities are anxious for a peaceful settlement, but there are two possible sources of trouble. The first is that the Japanese extremists may insist on the punishment of some of the highest officials of the Kuomintang, which would be bound to arouse great resistance, and, secondly, the incensed elements of the Shanghai Japanese community may provoke an incident leading to military action.—Reuter.

PASSION PLAY IN PARIS

Mediaeval Spectacle Before Notre Dame

PRESIDENT OF FRANCE IN AUDIENCE

Paris.—An open-air performance of a XVth-century passion play "Le Vrai Mystere de la Passion," by Armand Gredan, was given here recently under the auspices of the Committee of Fetes.

The representation was held with all the mediaeval pomp on the huge square in front of Notre Dame Cathedral, where stands were erected to accommodate 12,000 spectators, among whom was President Albert Lebrun and a large number of Government and diplomatic officials.

On the stage, 130 feet long and 80 feet wide, the mediaeval populace, lords, citizens, wench soldiers and students commented on the developments of the passion play proper and took part in the action.

Cathedral Background.—The rules of the theatre of the Middle age were observed by the director, M. Pierre Adalbert.

The central gates of the cathedral were used as the only background for the play. The stage was flanked by two towers, one of which supported the heaven with the Lord Father on a throne surrounded by angels, while, at the foot of the other tower, gaped the mouth of Hell from where the growling of the Devil could be heard at intervals.

BISHOP PASSES SENTENCE

Convicted Curate Deprived

The Rev. George Bailey, 37, curate in charge of Hutton Henry, near Wingate, County Durham, was recently found guilty at Durham Diocesan Consistory Court, sitting in Galilee Chapel, Durham Cathedral, of an ecclesiastical offence. He was sentenced by the Bishop of Durham (Dr. Henson) to be deprived of all preferment in the Diocese of Durham.

Bailey, who is at present serving a nine months' sentence in Durham Prison, attended in person wearing clerical garb and collar. He said that he did not appeal against the Assize sentence because he had no money and because he was unable to produce more evidence.

Ordained deacon in 1927, and priest in 1928, Bailey was assistant curate of St. Hilary's, Hartlepool, till 1932, when he went as curate-in-charge of Hutton Henry.

OTTO AND ZITA MAY RETURN IN AUTUMN

PEOPLE CONCERNED ABOUT TREASURE

FORMER ARCHDUKE LEOPOLD FERDINAND PASSES

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Vienna, To-day.—The greatest political sensation for years has been provided here by the approval by the State Council of the bill repealing the anti-Hapsburg law, especially since it is now revealed that the bill was not only concerned with the restoration of property but also sanctions in principle the return of the Hapsburg family to Austria.

Although the Secretary of State, M. Karwinsky, who with a deputation of financial experts is now conducting negotiations with the representatives of the Hapsburgs in Belgium, is said to have conveyed to the chief tender to the Austrian and Hungarian thrones, the Archduke Otto, a communication from the Government that there was no question of the Hapsburgs taking part in political life at present, speculation is rife as to the probable influence his and his mother's return to Austria will have on political developments. (His mother is the ex-Empress Zita).

Everybody is asking the question: When will Otto and Zita come back? Well-informed circles being of the opinion that they will return in the autumn.

The Telegraph am Mittag claims to have received information from a reliable source that Otto's brothers, the Archdukes Robert and Felix, will arrive in Vienna within a few days, the paper adding that once the Hapsburgs are back in the country there is no foreseeing the political developments.

The reaction of the population to the proposed repeal of the anti-Hapsburg laws appears to be rather one of concern as to whether the national treasures will now become the private property of the Hapsburgs again than of great enthusiasm for the measure.

The fate of the famous Hofburg Palace in the centre of Vienna and the Schoenbrunn Palace on the outskirts is said to be uncertain. The historical Palace of Luxembourg and many others, as well as the large estates, will be returned. The great art collections and Crown Jewels, however, will remain the property of the nation.—Trans-Ocean Service.

FORMER ARCHDUKE PASSES

A Berlin message states that at the moment when the repeal of the anti-Hapsburg laws by the Austrian Government makes it appear that the star of the Hapsburg dynasty is once more in the ascendant, one of the most picturesque members of that illustrious house, the former Archduke Leopold Ferdinand, who renounced his titles more than 30 years ago and since then had been known as plain Mr. Leopold Wolfing, died here yesterday in the greatest poverty, aged 66.

The former Archduke was the eldest son of the last Grand Duke of Toscana and the grand-nephew of the late Emperor Francis Joseph. He served as a Colonel in the Austrian army, when in 1902 he fell in love with a young actress named Wilhelmina Adamovic and in order to marry her renounced his hereditary rights and titles and adopted the name Wolfing. Under an agreement with the house of Hapsburg he was compelled to leave Austria, but was paid a pension.

DIVORCE FOLLOWS

He subsequently became a Swiss citizen, but his romance with his actress wife lasted only till 1907, when they became divorced by mutual consent. He soon afterwards married another commoner, Maria Ritter, but this marriage likewise ended in the divorce court in 1917.

When after the war and following the proclamation of the Austrian Republic the Hapsburg dynasty lost not only its throne but all its private property as well, Wolfing was left penniless. He attempted to eke out a living successively as an entertainer in a cabaret, a journalist, an insurance agent, and a shop-keeper, drifting from Switzerland to Berlin and Vienna and back to Berlin, where a few years ago he married for a third time and lived in complete obscurity.

Wolfing published several books and numerous articles concerning the more intimate history of the former Imperial Court at Vienna.—Trans-Ocean Service.

ANTI-HAPSBURG LAWS

Repeal Approved By Austrian Council

STARHENBERG AND FEY ON MYSTERIOUS MISSIONS

Vienna, To-day.

The State Council has approved the Government's measure repealing the law of banishment against the Hapsburgs and restoring the family estate and fortune.

The Cabinet has sent two of its members on sudden mysterious flights. Prince von Starhemberg, Vice-Chancellor, and Major Fey, Commissioner of Defence, left by air for Rome and Budapest, respectively.

It is believed that the former is going to see Signor Mussolini with regard to the latest Hapsburg development, while Major Fey is communicating with the Hungarian legitimate heirs.—Reuter.

ITALY AND SANTO DOMINGO

Relations Friendly And Cordial

The Dominican Legation in London recently stated that rumours which emanated from Washington to the effect that the Italian Government contemplated sending a warship to Santo Domingo, in connection with the imprisonment there of Signor Amadeo Barletta, who was arrested on a charge of subversive activities, was without foundation.

Signor Barletta, the Legation pointed out, is now under bail of £10,000 awaiting trial. The relations between the Dominican Republic and Italy are, it was added, friendly and cordial.

A series of questions were yesterday addressed to the Minister for the Colonies, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, and Mr. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, regarding the tentative offer from the British Government conditionally to cede Archduke Otto is expected to return to Vienna next autumn.

NO NEGOTIATIONS.—Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, Minister for the Colonies, said that in view of the tentative nature of Mr. Eden's suggestion to Signor Mussolini, there had been no negotiations. The interests of the tribes would have been consulted if the suggestion had gone any further.

In the course of the reply other speakers pointed out that the principal port of British Somaliland was Berbera, not Zeila, which had been prominent in connection with the offer.

Mr. A. R. Wise (C. Smithwick) reminded Mr. MacDonald of the intense feeling on the previous occasion of our transfer of a part of Somaliland to Italy.

"HOUSE WOULD BE CONSULTED"

Replying to a later question Mr. Eden recapitulated the circumstances of the offer. He said: "Had Signor Mussolini favourably received the suggestion we should immediately have consulted France. I assure the House that no offer of territory becomes effective before the House of Commons has been informed."

The whole subject is likely to be thoroughly ventilated in the Foreign Office debate next Thursday.—Reuter.

DISQUIETING EFFECT

A later message states that at a later stage of question time in the House of Commons Mr. Malcolm MacDonald said that the territory embraced by Mr. Eden's tentative suggestion was the port of Zeila with a corridor roughly 50 miles long and 12 miles wide, to link up with Ethiopia.

The population of Zeila fluctuates seasonally, from 3,000 in the summer to 7,000 in the winter. The hinterland is not permanently populated but is visited by nomadic tribesmen at certain seasons.

There were cheers from all parts of the House when Captain Peter MacDonald (C. Isle of Wight) asked the Government, before making further tentative suggestions, to consider very seriously the disquieting effect this had had on the native tribes throughout the Empire.

Mr. Malcolm MacDonald recalled that Mr. Eden's suggestion was hedged with conditions with regard to grazing rights for certain nomadic tribes in the territories proposed to be leased.

The Speaker put a stop to a further attempt to ask a question in the matter.—Reuter.

APPEAL TO AMERICA

Washington, To-day.—Adroitly choosing Independence Day the Emperor of Ethiopia has appealed to the United States to invoke the provisions of the Kellogg Pact in connection with the dispute with Italy. The text of the appeal has not yet been published.

Officials are very silent but are apprehensive that the appeal will precipitate a situation similar to that when China invoked the pact during the Sino-Japanese dispute in 1931.—Reuter.

QUESTIONS IN COMMON

A series of questions were yesterday addressed to the Minister for the Colonies, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, and Mr. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, regarding the tentative offer from the British Government conditionally to cede to Abyssinia a strip of British Somaliland, in order to facilitate a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute.

Mr. MacDonald explained that it was contemplated that the port of Zeila might, subject to certain conditions, be ceded to Abyssinia, together with a corridor of territory roughly 50 miles long and 12 miles wide.

The number of inhabitants fluctuated, he said. In Zeila they numbered about 3,000 in summer and 7,000 in winter, while the hinterland was seasonally visited by nomads, but had no permanent inhabitants.

TENTATIVE SUGGESTION ONLY.—Having regard to the tentative nature of the suggestion made to Signor Mussolini and refused by him, no negotiations had taken place with the Governor or inhabitants of the area concerned. If the tentative proposal had been carried further, however, the interests of the inhabitants would certainly have been consulted.

There was never any question that the territory would have been handed over unconditionally. Certain guarantees would have been required, for instance, maintenance of grazing and watering rights for British Somali tribes.

Asked for an assurance that in any negotiations with foreign Powers which involved an offer of territory the House of Commons would be informed before such offer became effective, Mr. Eden replied that it was the considered policy of the Government to keep the House informed on such matters.

In regard to this particular instance the suggestion made to Signor Mussolini represented an effort to reach an agreed settlement of the situation, which the British Government regarded with grave concern. It was put forward solely in order to find out from Signor Mussolini whether should the British Government make a formal proposal on these lines, it would be likely to command itself to the Italian Government as a constructive contribution to the settlement of the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia.

NO ADVANCE PUBLICATION.—For that reason it could not be published in advance of its preliminary communication to Signor Mussolini. But, had the suggestion been favourably received, a full explanation of it would at once have been given to the House with an opportunity for full discussion.

The British Government would also at once have entered into consultation with the French Government, as co-signatory of the 1906 treaty, and with the Ethiopian Government.

When a member asked that, in view of the grave danger that the proposal might be taken by foreign Powers as a precedent, the Government should make it clear that they would not try to induce such Powers to hark back to a transfer of British territory, Mr. Eden retorted: "Yes, Sir. But there are always grave dangers in any positive action."—British Wireless Service.

TRAGEDY ON EVE OF WEDDING

Bride Sees Groom Killed

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Belgrade.

On the eve of her wedding, a young girl of Kosovska Mitrovica, saw her fiancé struck dead by lightning before her eyes.

Hajrij and her prospective husband, Beterif Kajatz, were sitting beneath a great tree in the courtyard of her home sheltering from the rain, while they said "goodnight" on her wedding eve.

Hajrij at last entered the house, leaving her lover sitting under the tree. As she reached her room she saw a vivid flash of lightning and heard a crash.

She dashed to the window, and underneath the tree saw a flame burning.

Calling her brother, she dashed downstairs and out into the yard.

Beneath the smouldering tree lay Beterif, stone dead, with his clothes still burning.

Calabrinno proceeded at a walk—to Ponte Cavour, through Via Condotti to Piazza di Spagna, slowly, slowly, as far as Via Sistina.

Till Via Sistina he had managed to keep awake, to avoid the traffic—the electric trams, the drays, motors, and harrows—arguing that such a miserable funeral wouldn't command any precedence. But at the end of Via Sistina, he relaxed. Tipping his hat once more on his nose, and resting a leg on the splashboard, he settled down again to sleep.

Anyway, the horses knew the road.

Everyone stared at him. That driver asleep on the box in the glare and heat, that corpse asleep in the coffin in the dark and cold, that solitary mourner in her patterned dress, with her white parasol and down-at-heel shoes—in short, that whole cortege, so queer, so silent, and so lonely—filled them with consternation. Whatever had that corpse been thinking of—to treat death with so little solemnity! What manner was that of travelling to the other world! It was all of it wrong. The hour was wrong, the day and the season were wrong. Had that corpse no sense of decency? The thing offended. It jarred. After all, with an odd funeral like that, could one blame the driver for being asleep?

And Calabrino no doubt would have slept till the cemetery had the horses at a certain point (who knows why?) not quickened their pace. As it was, he awoke with a jump.

Now, on awaking with a jump, he saw, standing on the pavement, looking at him, a tall, emaciated gentleman with black whiskers, his eyes encircled by black-rimmed spectacles, and under his arm a parcel. Then—Bang! Whiz! Calabrino had the parcel in his face, plumb on his nose, half-stunning him, while after it screaming like a maniac, came the gentleman himself—blaspheming, gesticulating, letting loose the most frightful insults, shaking his hands at Calabrino, as though, having nothing else to fire, he was trying to fire off his hands at him:

"Blackguard! Scoundrel! Assassin! To me . . . just to me!—father of a family, the father of nine! . . . O-oh, you rascal! . . . O-oh, you villain! . . . To me, the father of nine! . . . But I'll teach you! I'll have the law on you! PU—"

In a flash a crowd gathered. Shops vomited their customers, windows became blocked with heads, tramway-cars, cars, lorries stopped dead, from the adjoining streets rushed pedestrians and vehicles, everyone rushed forward, women screamed, men struggled, jumped about, stood on their toes, to see, to get a view, to understand. . . .

"What's up? . . . What's happened? . . . A bomb? . . . My God! . . . Is there danger? . . . A corpse? . . . But where? . . . In the coffin? . . . Wh-a-t? . . . A parcel? . . . At the driver? . . . But why?"

The tall gentleman, meanwhile, had been dragged to a cafe, where he still yelled, demanding, with threat, his parcel. But why, why, he had thrown it, not a soul could make out!

Calbrino, on his box, pale as death, the centre of a jeering crowd was replacing his topper on his head, while questioned by a policeman who was writing his answers in a pocket-book.

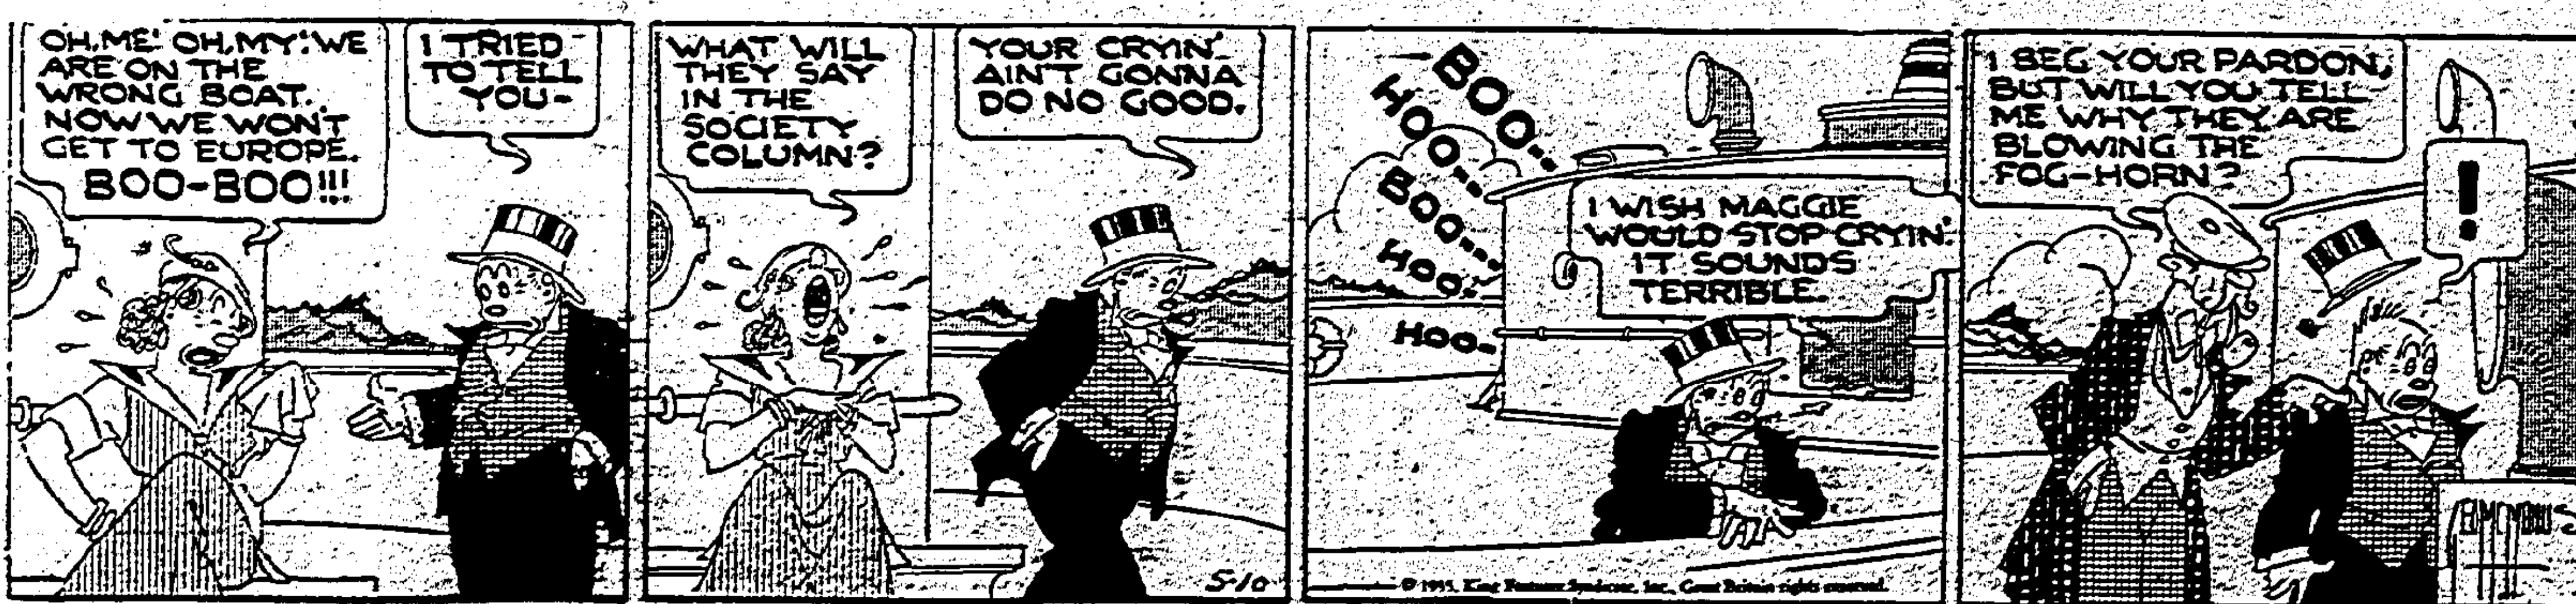

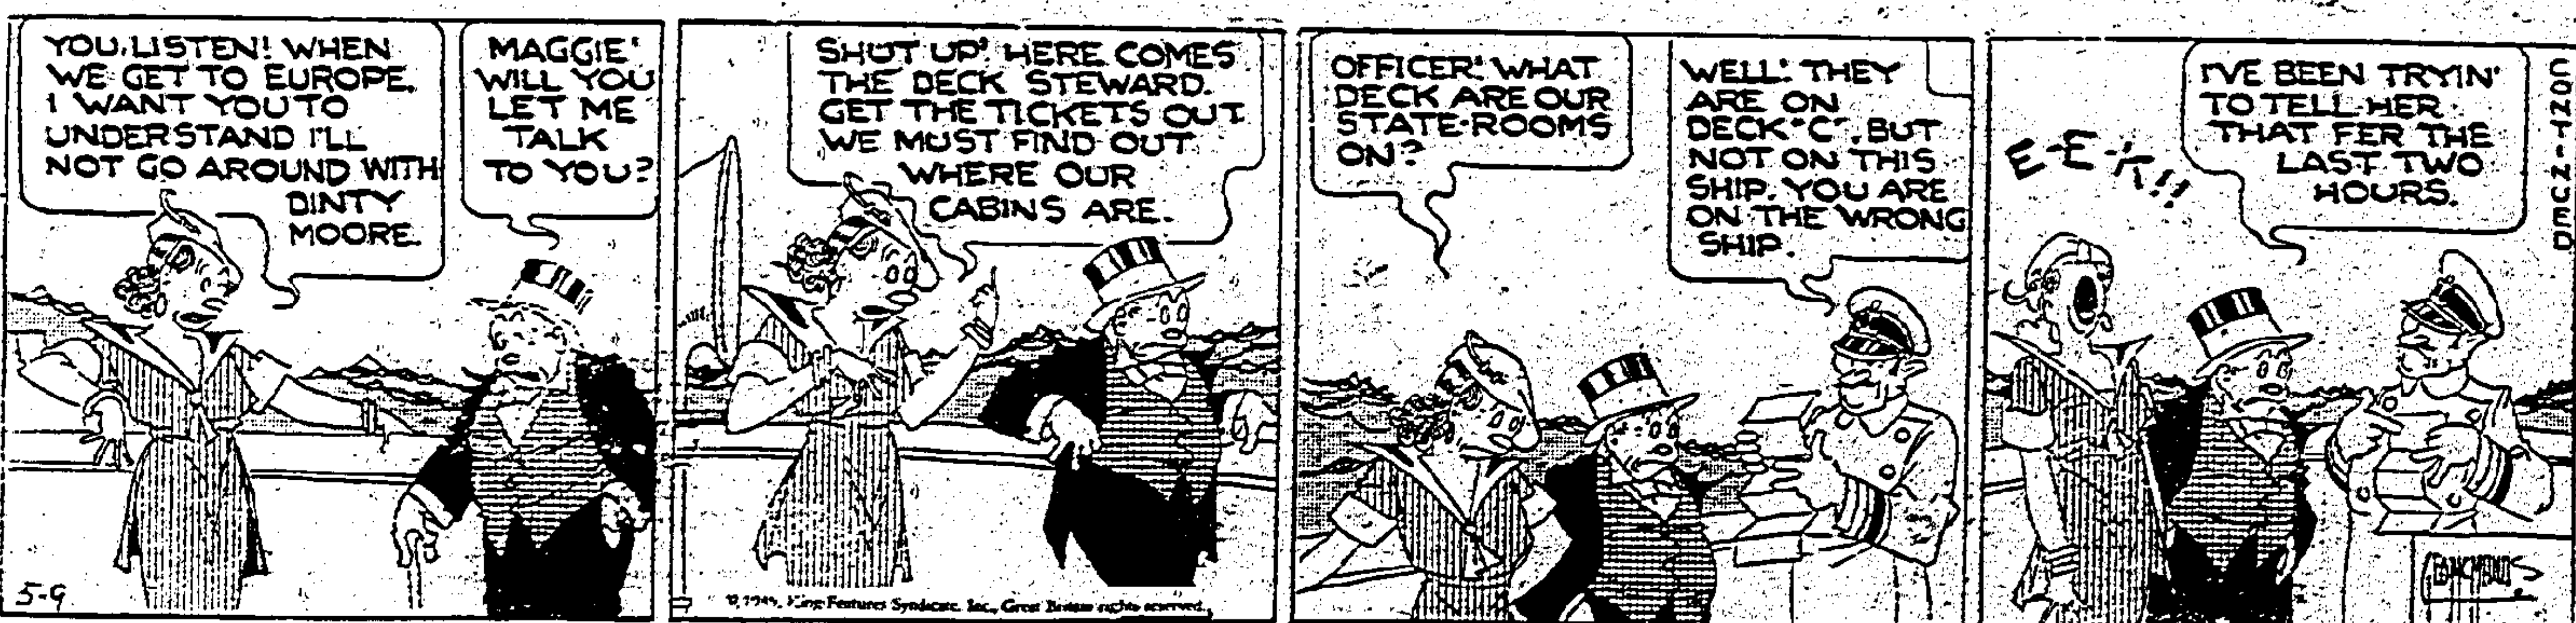

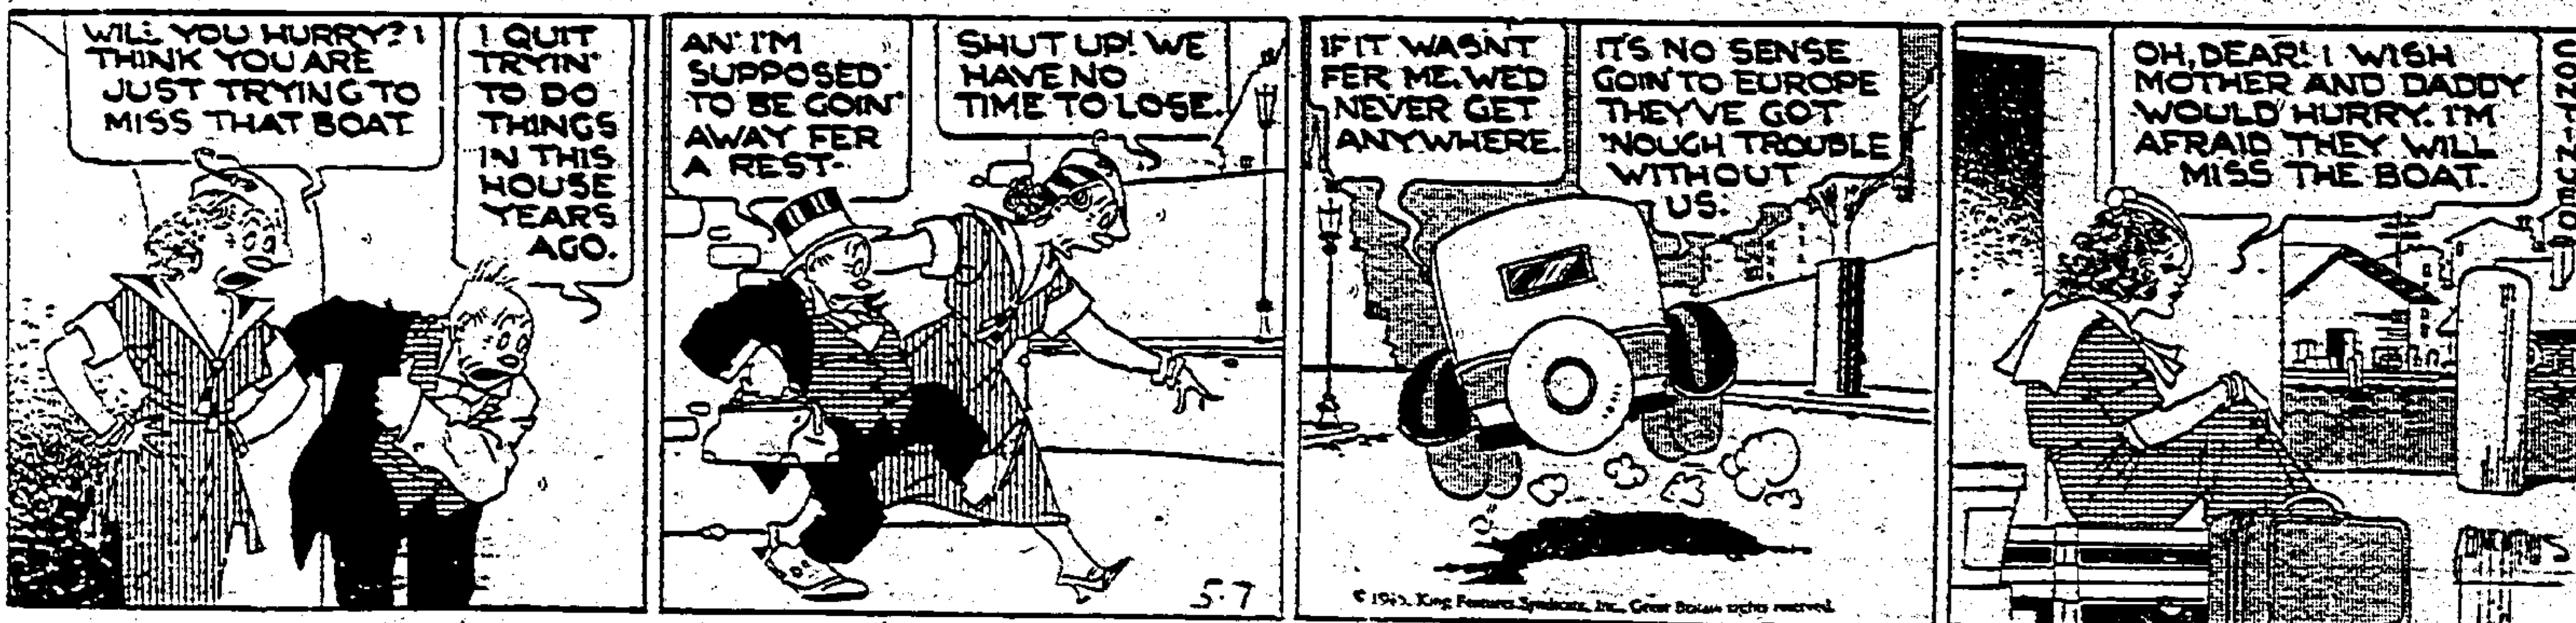

After a long, long time the bears moved on, the crowd making way for it, shouting. But when he solitary mourner took her place behind it, in her yellow-and-black dress, her long veil obscuring her face, holding high her white parasol, there was silence.

Anyhow, after all, had happened?

Noting Just absent-mindedness. Salabrino; when he awoke with slump, dazed from his sleep, had forgotten that his vehicle was a hearse. For so many years, a caddy accustomed to solicit fares, and ferry that gentleman on the pavement, he had made him the usual life sign with his finger, inviting to get in.

All the fuss because of a tiny little cup!

CAR SUSPENDED OVER BUND

Remarkable Accident In Shanghai

NOBODY HURT

A remarkable accident occurred on the Bund, Shanghai, near the Customs Jetty, shortly before midnight one night last month, when a motor-car almost plunged headlong into the river. With its two front wheels suspended above the water, the vehicle was prevented from falling only by the strong iron chain which serves as railing on the shore.

The sight caused some astonishment to the scores of persons who saw the members of the American Economic Mission off.

Vehicle Empty

At the time of the accident, there was no one in the vehicle. It was alleged that the car, parked on the Bund facing the river, was pushed from behind by another vehicle which was moving out. The impact proved to be so strong that the empty car mounted the pavement and struck the iron chain, resulting in one of its front lights falling into the water. Beyond that, no serious damage was reported by either car.

FRAUDS BY AGENT

Cruel Crimes

Outlined

WIFE DESCRIBED AS "VAMPIRE"

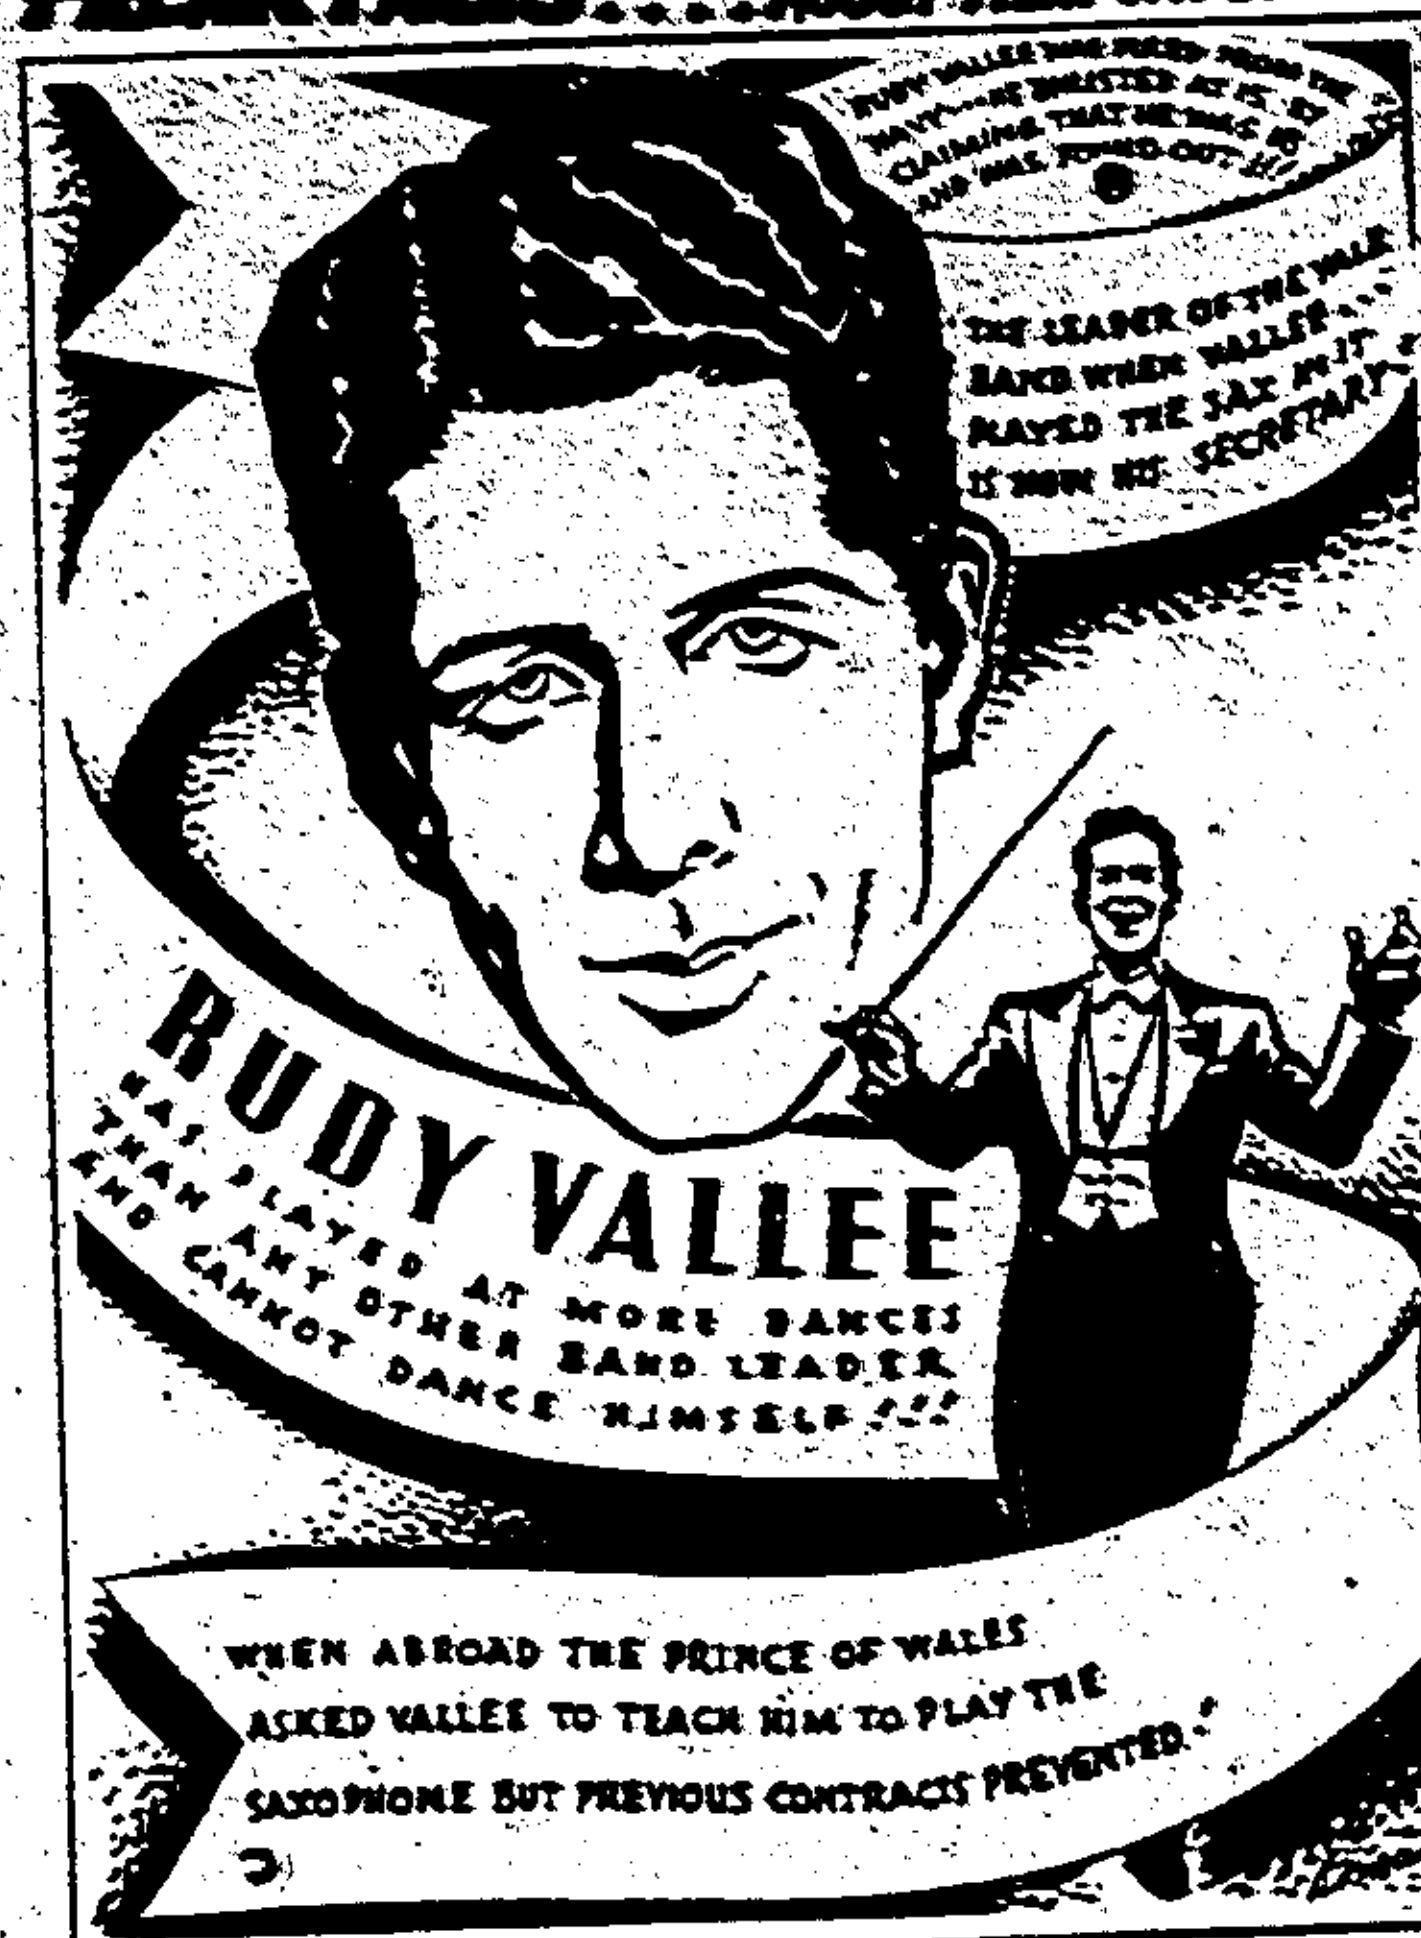

For what the chairman, Sir Percival Clarke, described as seven years of cruel crime, Henry Patrick O'Neill, 48, estate agent, Fulham Park-road, S.W., was at London Sessions recently sentenced to six years' penal servitude. He was charged with fraudulently converting £20 which had been entrusted to him by Frederick Matthew Rance, and he asked for 37 other cases to be taken into consideration.

Mr. R. E. Seaton (prosecuting) said that the frauds committed by O'Neill had continued from 1928 until February last, and the sum involved was £3,868. Prisoner purported to be a business transfer agent, and induced people to part with their money for businesses that did not exist. The victims were "cleaned out" of every penny they had. In one case a man who had been left penniless committed suicide. O'Neill was the ringleader of a gang engaged in fleecing the public in this way.

Homes Broken Up

Inspector Lee said that as the result of O'Neill's frauds homes had been broken up and men ruined in health and spirit. The money had been spent by O'Neill and his associates in drink and loose living. "He was assisted in these frauds by his wife, who is nothing but a vampire, and who foists her attentions on these poor devils," added the inspector.

FREAK FACTS.... ABOUT FILM FAVORITES

Rudy Vallee scores another success in Warner's Brothers' "Sweet Music", the first screenings of which will be shown at the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow.

Ralph Lynn in "Just My Luck" is as funny as ever, and "Charlie Chan in Paris" is easily the best of the Chan series. Mary Brian, John Miljan, Thomas Beck, Erik Rhodes and the Chinese actor, Keye Luke. An original twist to this story that keeps you puzzled all the time to the exciting end. Grand programme. Recommended.

Majestic

"Forsaking all Others," with stellar honours going to three grand people, Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery and Clark Gable. All-round excellent cast comprising Rosalind Russell, Frances Drake, Charles Butterworth and Billie Burke, not forgetting excellent direction by

"Woody" van Dyke. This film has everything that goes to make a highly successful movie.

Then comes "A Wicked Woman." Sorry to see the Viennese star, Mady Christians, wasting her talents in sordid drama. Jean Parker and Charles Bickford among a large cast are in support. Eddie Cantor is always sure to pack the theatres, with his appeal to the peoples of all nationalities. In "Kid Millions" he has the usual absurd story, pretty girls galore, catchy songs and most of the time on the little star with the rolling eyes.

Oriental

"White Parade" is easily the best acting Loretta Young has yet given us. This saga of life in a big hospital among the nursing staff is full of interest. John Boles, Jane Darwell, Sara Haden, and a group of pretty girls contribute in a large way to the general success and enjoyment of the film.

Followed by "The Count of Monte Cristo," with Robert Donat, Sidney Blackmer, Elissa Landi and dozens more. "Alexandra Dumas" famous story lends itself to spectacular dramatic screen material. "From Headquarters," with Margaret Lindsay and George Brent, is worth seeing. Good drama, well sustained interest and splendid acting. All due to the popular Oriental.—D.L.A.—E.

Robert Montgomery has been very ill with overwork, so has left the cast of "Mystery on the Bounty" (Franchot Tone stepping in to do it) and after a good rest on his farm will start in "Mystery of the Dead" which is a story of war between England and Turkey.

Mae West will shortly start work on "Hallelujah, I'm a Saint," which is said to be almost point blank the life of the Hot Gospelier, Almee Semple McPherson.

Marian Davies, who has finished her first Warner picture "Page Miss Glory," is likely to play the double role of "Viola" and her twin brother in "Twelfth Night."

Fred MacMurray (seen here in "Gilded Lily") will be lead opposite Katharine Hepburn in "Alice Adams," while John Beal will be again her leading man in Compton Mackenzie's "Sylvia Scarlett."

"One Night of Love" is breaking records everywhere. In Sydney (Australia) it is in its sixth month and still playing to crowded houses. At Covent Garden, where Grace Moore has been singing in "La Boheme," her triumph was unprecedented and she received applause which has rarely been surpassed in that famous Opera House. Police had to control the crowds who besieged the stage door.

Columbia are trying to place Anna Sten under contract now that she has left Sam Goldwyn's management.

William, brother of James Cagney, has left the screen to become a film agent.

Henry Morrison is another Britisher to join the Hollywood film colony and, after appearing with Ricardo Cortez in "Sing Me a Love Song," will make another "Bedding Drums" story.

The play in which Max Gregory Ratoff (Eugene Leonovich) and Sydney Greenstreet have scored so heavily in London will be filmed by M.C.M. who is said to have paid $100,000 for the rights. DIANE.

Neat Goal

Gutteridge, the Lincoln leader, played a sound game and scored their only goal—a great piece of opportunism—deflecting the ball past S. Fowler from a long throw.

The two backs, Freebourne and Blyth, were very much in their element when defending in the shallow end but were hopelessly out-positioned in the deep end when the "Y" scored five goals in the second half.

Steele had his job cut out in playing policeman to G. Fowler, and lack of experience told its tale here, for time and again he took a wrong step to intercept one of the "Y" leader's moves.

Fine Refereeing

An outstanding feature of the match was the excellent manner in which Sergt. Yeomans, of the Lincolns, handled the game. He was quick to pull up the offenders and throughout made the encounter as enjoyable as possible.

The "Y" opened the scoring in the first half when G. Fowler unexpectedly volleyed from Kerr to take Wildy unawares. The Lincolns, however, replied through Gutteridge, who scored with a similar shot in the deep end.

In the second half the "Y" ran riot, brilliant passing and positioning among the team resulting in five goals through Fowler (3), Lange and Kerr.

The teams were:—Y.M.C.A.—S. Fowler, F. Fowler, and H. G. Lange; Kerr, Ferret, G. Fowler and R. Goldman. H.Q. Wing Line Regt.—Cpl. Wildy, Pte. Freebourne and Pte. Blyth; Sgt. Steele; Pte. Allison, Bdsn. Gutteridge and Lt. Cpl. MacKinnon.

Portuguese Probables

It is practically certain that when the time for selection arrives C. G. Silva, who has journeyed through this season's league games without being defeated, will be put in command, but the composition of the rest of the rink calls for more careful consideration. J. E. Noronha has been mentioned as a likely No. 1. He is playing good bowls just now and has the additional advantage of being familiar with Silva's methods. F. V. Ribeiro is one of the best No. 3's open to selection and his name is being linked with that of R. F. Lutz for the No. 3 position. Lutz, it is understood, is unable to devote as much time to the game as he did in the past, and his play has consequently suffered.

England's Two Skips

England has a host of players to choose from and selection in this case will be a difficult task. A. W. Grimsitt and F. Cullen are probably the two most likely skips, while V. Ramsey, R. Lapsley, H. Beer and B. W. Bradbury are names that will have to be given every consideration provided they are available.

With the progress made by the Indian R.C. lately, India should manage to enter a powerful contingent with the redoubtable U. M. Omar in the skip's position. E. el Arculli is playing a vastly improved game this season and should not be overlooked. Others are A. A. Razack, A. R. Minu, D. Rumsdahn and A. R. Dallah.

Many of Scotland's strongest links will be conspicuous by their absence this year but a good rink could be selected from A. M. Holland, J. C. Chalmers, P. T. Farrell, R. Duncan and J. C. Brown.

Wales Not Entering?

It is learned that because of a hitch in last year's arrangements Wales will not enter a team for the competition this year. Their most powerful representative, F. J. Jones, will not be playing for a certainty, thus leaving a vacancy which would be almost impossible to fill.

There is every likelihood of an Australian team being entered, however, and despite the fact that their number is limited they should be capable of giving any other rink an enjoyable and probably a very worrying afternoon. If entered the team would probably comprise L. Glendinning, W. B. Musket, E. C. Fincher and W. S. Glendinning (skip), provided these bowlers are all available.

Selection Criticised

The present system of selecting the rinks for the competition is not quite as satisfactory as it may appear on the surface, for many feel that it would be more advisable to allow the countries concerned to choose whom they think should represent them rather than leave the ungrateful task to the Association.

This seems reasonable enough, for, after all, one group of men of the same nationality is more likely to know what would be their strongest team than a group of various nationalities. It would be a parallel case if the Association chose the team they thought the most representative of a Club for league encounters.

H. Khazas, A. W. Randall, Dr. Fernando and A. Kitchell (skip).
W. English, W. Atkins, W. Phelps and W. Ward (skip).

Kowloon C.C.

A. Nisim, S. J. Houghton, W. J. Ceall and L. E. Lammer (skip).

LUTZ'S RINK PLAY TOO WELL ON SOME HEADS!

Brown's Fine Shot

The latter rink is thought to be the strongest the Bowling Green possess. Even though the margin of difference only amounted to a solitary shot, the result reveals great improvement and suggests great possibilities for the future.

W. Hyde proved a most valuable asset to the team and justified the confidence placed in him.

Hyde-Lay found it hard work pulling against the tide, which was at full flow—many little tricky undercurrents made themselves manifest—and were rather discouraging. J. C. Brown, who was his opponent, was showing a steadiness and excellence which reached a very high standard.

Brown, at one head, was responsible for a shot that made a difference of six in the score in favour of the Bowling Green. He wicked-in off a short wide bowl, took the jack through, and counted four when the K.C.C. rink were lying two.

Misleading Form

Results in the Second Division matches were as expected, with one exception, the Craigengower v Civil Service match where the home team won in a decisive manner. Here we had an example of how misleading form could really be. In the previous match, when opposed to the Bowling Green, the Craigengower bowlers were made to look like novices; then they overcame the Civil Servants—who are no mean exponents of lawn bowls—by the colossal total of 53 shots against the humble collection of 38.

The rink that W. Ward has charge of, must have been at the very top of form to win by 42 shots to 10!

J. C. Chalmers, of the Talkoo team, is in the opinion of many, skipping the best rink among the Juniors and his record supports this contention.

A Recent Enthusiast

D. Bone, who joined the Talkoo Club 16 years ago, gives him sterling assistance, although it is only quite recently that he became an enthusiast of the game. D. Peoples, who has played for Hong Kong against Shanghai, is also in fine fettle.

A. Brookbank, of the Football Club, has made extraordinary progress as regards form since the season opened. He was mainly responsible for his side's most worthy victory against the Hong Kong Electric.

succession of violent fluctuations, now to the left, now to the right, and the tendency to trust everything to mass effects, are evils which if uncorrected will weaken our system of government to the point of national disaster.

It is not only our Empire and the trade and livelihood of our people which are at stake, but also that very freedom in which we have been reared and which almost alone among the nations of the world we still preserve. A courageous and far-seeing Government possessed of great majorities in both Houses would certainly not have failed to deal with electoral reform within the life of the present Parliament.

They could have passed the Bill in the time they wasted over the Sedition Act and the Betting Act.

TROUBLE OVER ARREARS OF TEACHERS' PAY

Promise Of Payment
Not Carried Out

FACING SUMMER HOLIDAYS
WITH NO MONEY

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Canton, To-day.

Not having received their salaries for April, May, and June, teachers in the municipal schools are agitating for an immediate settlement, as they need money to take them back to their villages for the present summer vacation.

The Municipal Government promised to pay half the arrears of salaries before the beginning of the summer vacation, but so far no funds are available. Teachers in the municipal, middle and primary schools have joined together in a common effort to secure their salaries.

Owing to financial embarrassment the teachers are unable to devote their full attention to their work. Many of them are looking for openings in private schools or other vacancies. Parents of school children are also planning to send them to other schools if they can afford to pay higher tuition fees.

Business depression and the expenditure of large sums of money in other directions are responsible for the delay in paying the teachers in time.

"MARTYR FOR U.S. UNIONISM"

the ship was late in arriving in port.

The tombstone was subscribed and paid for by the ship's company of the s.s. McKinley.

WORDING ON TOMBSTONE
The wording on the tombstone is as follows:

In Memory of Bruce Lindbergh, who died on February 3, 1935, a Martyr for American Unionism. Erected by members of the International Seamen's Union of the s.s. President McKinley, on July 5, 1935.

The grave was covered by a huge wreath of white flowers with the letters I.S.U. in red flowers running across the centre.

UPHOLDING THE UNION

Lindbergh's death was the sequel to an incident which took place on the Kowloon wharves some months before his demise, when a clash took place between several U.S. seamen who refused to go on strike during the last San Francisco shipping deadlock and others who had stood by the International Seamen's Union.

Lindbergh had belonged to the latter clan, and on February 3 accepted Alva Charles Chown, 42-year-old ship's carpenter of the s.s. President Grant, a non-striker. Together with two other Union seamen, Lindbergh forced Chown (Continued at Foot of Column 3)

COLONEL BECK'S BERLIN MISSION SUCCESSFUL

relations of both States but also as a constructive element in ensuring peace in Europe.

Minister Beck stressed in this connection that Chancellor Hitler's statement concerning Poland in his speech of May 21, especially his expressed desire for the permanence of the German-Polish agreement, had evoked a lively echo in Poland, and that Poland shares the desire for even more firmly established friendly neighbourly relations with Germany. With due regard to the close proximity of the two nations, both Governments will continue to maintain close contact and will devote all their energies to the cause of European peace.

HITLER RETURNS VISIT

A later message from Berlin states that the exchange of views which took place there on the occasion of the visit of the Polish Foreign Minister continued yesterday, when Colonel Beck conferred with the Foreign Minister, Baron von Neurath.

The Polish statesman subsequently paid a visit to the war memorial in the chief thoroughfare of the capital, the Unter den Linden, where he was received by the Minister of War, General von Blomberg, the Commander-in-Chief of the German Army, General von Fritsch, and other high officers.

After talking the salute of the Guard of Honour, Colonel Beck entered the memorial hall, where he deposited a wreath and remained some moments in silent tribute to the German war dead.

A luncheon which the Polish Ambassador, M. Lipicki, gave yesterday in honour of Colonel Beck was attended by Reichsfuehrer Hitler, who thereby returned the official visit paid to him by the Polish Foreign Minister on the previous day. A huge crowd had assembled in front of the Embassy, and greeted the arrival and departure of the Chancellor, the Polish guests and the various members of the Reich Government with lusty cheers.

MINISTER LEAVES BERLIN

A later message states that the Polish Foreign Minister, accompanied by his wife and daughter, left Berlin last night for the Bavarian spa Bad Reichenhall, which is situated not far from Herr Hitler's summer residence at Berchtesgaden. Trans-Ocean Service.

Goddard's best bowling feats to date have been 11 for 187 against Kent, 5 for 38 v. Somerset, and 6 for 36 v. Glamorgan, while Sinfield, in addition to two centuries, has taken 6 for 17 against Hampshire.

Worcester's defeat yesterday was their tenth reverse in 15 matches.
